DEBATES in the House and in the Senate indicate that prohibition is to become more and more the principal issue in United States politics and public opinion.

The House and Senate, calm about other things, become wildly excited when a pint of whiskey or the shrinking of a bootlegger is mentioned.

Many believe sincerely that drinking or not drinking whiskey is the most important issue in the affairs of the United States.

Others think that great engineering problems, development of national industry and prosperity are more important.

The law, for reasons known to Providence, seems to be on the side of those that defy prohibition.

Vermont passed a law compelling buyers of liquor to tell who sold it. Vermont's Supreme Court says the "disclosure law" is unconstitutional. Hundreds have been sent to jail for violating the law.

Prohibition would be 10 times more effective if the law held the buyer of liquor as guilty as the seller. But high court decisions say it is a crime to sell liquor, no crime to buy it.

There is a difference between the seller and the buyer defying law and Constitution.

The seller makes money, the buyer ruins his constitution. Nevertheless, the law should put them in the same class.

At this writing, the royal marriage in Rome was part of history. The happy young couple had been blessed and married, and anarchists, whatever their plans may have been, had been disappointed.

Probably, if any of them saw the young couple, a youth and a girl that never hurt anybody they are glad of it.

Three kings saw the wedding, and the populace of Rome, always romantic, enjoyed it intensely. What Mussolini thought would make another interesting chapter. In the next century there will be no more kings, perhaps. But there will be other [illegible] people must have [illegible] made.

The United States army of simpletons that buy stocks when gentlemen ring the doorbell and tell them, "Now or never," or when other gentlemen call them on the telephone, are interested in this.

One get-rich-quick concern on trial in a federal court, is said to have spent $400,000 in one year for telephone messages to fools.

You may imagine how much the geese at the other end of the telephone must have lost to justify a $400,000 telephone bill in one year.

How prosperous this nation would be if citizens could be persuaded not to invest unless they know or have the advice of some honest, experienced man, preferably a respected banker who has been in business for some time.

There is always one investment that does not disappoint you, the savings bank. It does not call you up on the telephone but it does return your money when you want it.

Young Senator La Follette gets his seat on the Senate finance committee. Conservative senators, representing organized money and corporations that are the real government of the United States, didn't want him, but let him in to avoid a troublesome fight.

His admission was reasonable. La Follette does not represent the really big powers in the United States. But his ideas, and especially his archaic notion that the people ought to govern the United States, are shared by at least 90,000,000 out of 120,000,000 Americans.

The 90,000,000 haven't learned to use the ballot yet, but may learn some day.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis, in his interesting newspaper, starts a series of articles called "The Magazine Racket" in New York city.

The interesting statements reveal judges on the bench dealing with criminals from the gutter, gangsters, thieves, bootleggers.

The charge is made that one confessed thief was set free in court, and as a formality the money he had stolen was returned to the victim by the judge's orders.

Interesting incident in our civilization.

Somebody is always attacking "nature's sweet restorer." A German has invented a spherical alarm clock, manufactured by the Black Forest clock makers, to whom we owe the cuckoo clock.

This new alarm clock makes a loud noise, and at the same time, turns on an electric light located in the clock.

WEDDING OF KING BORIS UNDER BAN

Pope Pius Declines to Sanction Union of Greek Catholic and Italian Princess

London, Jan. 9 (INS)—King Boris has had a secret audience with the Pope to request the Pontiff's sanction for the Bulgarian sovereign's marriage to Princess Giovanna of Italy.

Today the Express received a dispatch from Rome stating the king's request had been refused.

King Boris attended the wedding of Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose at Rome yesterday.

Princess Giovanna is a sister of Prince Humbert.

Six years ago she and her sister, Princess Mafalda, were stricken with a mysterious illness and it was rumored that the sisters had entered into a suicide pact when it failed.

SISTERS NEAR DEATH

The report was that the younger sisters of the family, highly temperamental, agreed to accompany each other in death when Premier Mussolini insisted that Mafalda marry Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium to cement friendly relations with Belgium.

Later it was insisted that the sisters were both suffering from typhoid fever. At one time the condition of both was critical, but they recovered.

Since then both Mafalda and Giovanna have been wooed by several suitors, but Princess Giovanna has led with three kings. At one time there were three princes running neck and neck in the race, but the pretty 22-year-old maiden let it be known that they were in disfavor.

BORIS HAD RIVALS

This year the pursuit of Giovanna had narrowed down to King Boris of Bulgaria, King Zogu of Albania and Archduke Albrecht, pretender to the Hungarian throne.

King Boris finally won out in the princess' favor, but the bar of religion came between. While she is a Catholic, he is a member of the Greek Orthodox church, which has never recognized the supremacy of the Pope.

The sinking fund commissioners have control over the allocation of the millions of dollars in bonds and money which are held to take care of the city's debt requirements.

BOSTON YARDS TO REBUILD 13 SHIPS

Two of Vessels Sold by U. S. to Soviet Arrive; Means Work for Hundreds

A huge shipping contract, predicted to reach the $2,000,000 mark, was announced today by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp., Ltd., East Boston, with the arrival of two of a fleet of 13 cargo ships destined for reconstruction here.

The fleet comprises more than half of a lot of 25 ships sold to agents of the Soviet government by the United States Shipping Board at a price of $1,355,000.

The contract, according to officials at the yards, provides for the reconstruction of the vessels, which will be known as the Amtorg fleet, as soon as floating docks are available. Arrangements with the Amtorg Trading Corp., agents of New York.

IDLE SINCE WAR

The steamer Lake Pasadale was placed in the Simpson drydock for survey and the other vessel, the Lake Fablus, was towed into the Atlantic Works today.

Since the war the vessels have been tied up at New York and Norfolk, Va., pending disposal by the Shipping Board.

The sale was made through Johann G. Ohsel of New York and carried the provision that the vessels could not operate out of American ports for a period of five years and the larger type for 10 years. Sixteen of the ships register 4200 deadweight tons and nine range from 7300 to 7500 tons.

At the time of sale it was announced that the ships would ply between Vladivostok and Siberia; Black Sea ports and Vladivostok and Leningrad and Black Sea ports.

SEVERAL HUNDRED JOBS

Bethlehem officials said today there was no way of reaching an authentic estimate of the cost of the contract until the vessels assigned here were thoroughly surveyed and the number of men required is figured.

Employment for several hundred men, however, and predictions that the cost would pass the $2,000,000 mark were admitted.

The lighter vessels are equipped with reciprocating engines and Scotch oil burners. They were all built by the government during the war for service on the Great Lakes.

Purdon said he understood several government departments had been asked by Newton to work on a sliding scale, to ascertain if it was practicable.

Purdon added that he worked out several different sliding scale proposals and Chairman Caraway of the lobby committee asked him what became of them.

"I still have them," he replied as a laugh rose in the audience.

Purdon added that he understood his proposals had been transmitted

BATTLE FOR NOMINATION WELCOMED BY EX-MAYOR

Gubernatorial Tilt Would Pep Up Party, 'Acquaint' Voters With General, He Says

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald today declined to withdraw from the gubernatorial contest in favor of Gen. Edward L. Logan and challenged the war veteran to oppose him.

In a statement replying to Gen. Charles F. Cole's intention of supporting Logan's candidacy, the former mayor welcomes a Fitzgerald-Logan contest for the nomination and asserted his right to be his party's standard bearer. Gen Logan, however, declared he had nothing to say in reply to the statement.

"I have no intention of withdrawing for Gen. Logan," the statement reads. "A contest in the Democratic party for the nomination between Gen. Logan and myself would do no harm. On the other hand, it will mean a tremendous increase in the registration of Democratic voters and the election of the Democratic ticket."

FITZ SARCASTIC

There was sarcasm in the Fitzgerald declaration when the former mayor stated that such a contest "will get Gen. Logan acquainted with the voters of the state, which is very important for success on election day."

"For 35 years I have campaigned for the Democratic party in Massachusetts, paying my own expenses and never accepting an honorarium from any source," declared the former mayor.

"In 1910, after I was elected mayor, the Democratic leaders asked me to take the nomination for Governor which meant a sure election. I declined, feeling it my duty to continue my municipal responsibilities. In 1916, when nobody else would run against Henry Cabot Lodge, I made the fight, nearly defeating him.

"Two years afterwards I was entitled to the Democratic nomination against Senator Weeks, but withdrew in favor of Senator Walsh for party harmony. In 1922 I made the fight against Channing Cox and the Republicans had a tremendous advantage over us in the registration of women.

WITHDREW FOR CURLEY

"Everybody said I made a great fight and was entitled to the nomination in 1924. However, I withdrew in favor of Mayor Curley, who thought he could win.

"What I would like to see done is an open and friendly discussion of live issues here in this State. I would be willing to meet Gen. Logan or any other worthy opponent on the platform and discuss our respective candidacies. Voters of both parties would then get some real information on the respective qualities of the candidates. I would make the same proposition to the Republican candidate for Governor.

"The campaign of 1930 will be the most important that this State has seen on the platform. Sensational disclosures of the lobbies in Washington with their close relationship to the American Congressmen of course should be aired, as well as the hypocrasy of Volstead enforcement, not figuring the tariff.

MANY ISSUES IN STATE.

"In the state there are many issues. The question of unemployment—the worst in recent history—together with the workmen's compensation and insurance, would demand my attention.

"The question of public or private ownership of the Boston Elevated Railway, which comes before the people this year; the reform of our taxation system, which no Republican governor has dared to tackle

MAYOR CURLEY MOVES TO STOP $5000 A WEEK CITY 'LEAK'

HITS AT BIG 'OVERTIME' PAYMENTS

Asks Budget Commissioner Fox for Figures of Several Departments

Taking steps to stop what he calls an "unwarranted" leak in city expenditures, Mayor Curley today requested Budget Commissioner Charles J. Fox for information on overtime payments in certain departments.

The mayor pointed out that figures turned over to him revealed expenditures of approximately $5000 a week in three departments alone, which, if continued, would possess some $250,000 a year.

MAYOR'S LETTER

"I have been reviewing the budget for 1930 as submitted by various department heads to you," he wrote Commissioner Fox, "and find that the amount deemed necessary, if approved, will increase the cost of administering the departments of the city approximately $4,000,000.

"It is rather difficult in view of conditions industrially to justify an increase of this volume which will compel an increase in the tax rate, later to be passed on to every householder in the form of increased rentals.

"In my opinion the time has arrived to check unwarranted and unjustifiable customs which have been permitted to develop. In this connection I have before me a request for overtime in the water service amounting to nearly $1000 for the week ending January 6, 1930, and assigning as reason these: $3000 A WEEK.

"Employment of emergency men (on eight-hour shifts) overtime, to take care of any breaks in the water system; the highway division, paving service present for approval overtime payments amounting to about $600; the sewer division in the sum of $1858; the sanitary service in the sum of $1228; the bridge and ferry service in the sum of $1979. All these payments are for the week ending January 6, 1930.

"I have approved the recommendations for overtime as received and desire a report from you within 48 hrs. as to services rendered each year for the last five years. Such information is requested so that proper action can be taken to plug what appears to be an unwarranted leak."

sincerely; a thorough survey of the textile situation, something which should have been done 10 years ago.

Among other issues named by the former mayor is the repeal of the Baby Volstead Act; proper treatment for veterans; reform in prison methods; study of conditions in the State's institutions and a complete overhauling of the personnel in the Public Utility and Metropolitan District commissions.

"The immediate resignation of the present police commissioner of Boston" would be an issue with former Mayor Fitzgerald.

"It will be my intention, if elected, to see that the farmers of Massachusetts get a break on the funds loaned out in Washington, or helped in some proper manner. All these issues I am prepared to discuss with any candidate on the platform in the primary or election contest."

U. S. BARS YALE PROFESSOR

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 9 (INS)—Judge Burrows of district court today filed an order decreeing that Dr. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh professor of theology at Yale, cannot become a citizen of the United States. The order paves the way for an appeal in his behalf.

Professor MacIntosh was refused citizenship early in June and appealed from the decision of John F. Davis, examiner.

Judge Burrows' decision reads:

"Decreed that the petitioner is not attached to the Constitution of the United States, and further decreed that said petition is denied."

Mr. Bok, his friends said, considered the tower and its grounds a tribute to his grandparents, sturdy folk of the old world who found enjoyment in music.

In his 20 years as an editor Mr. Bok was associated with Cyrus H. K. Curtis, wealthy Philadelphia publisher, and in that city he was known as a patron of the fine arts.

He married a daughter of Mr. Curtis, the former Mary Louise Curtis, and they had two sons, Curtis, who resides at Rosmont, Pa., and Cary, who lives at Merion, Pa.

Questioned about a "highly confidential" memorandum sent by William H. Baldwin, New York publicity man, to Junior Owens, secretary of the American Borden's of Carbonated Beverages, Purdon said the information might have been obtained from him.

He added that nothing in the memorandum could be considered as confidential.

Maurice Mermey, New York publicity man, earlier testified before the lobby committee that he had discussed the sugar tariff with C. O. Townsend, sugar expert of the tariff commission.

INVOLVED OFFICIAL

The witness said, however, that it was merely a "spontaneous conversation" and that he did not know who the sugar expert was until today when he saw Townsend in the committee room.

Mermey's testimony resulted from a letter previously read, written by him to H. H. Pike, Jr., New York sugar broker. The letter said;

"The authority for the information on the enclosed memorandum entitled 'report on sliding scale' is Mr. Thompson,' sugar expert, United States tariff commission."

The committee learned from the tariff commission that it had no sugar expert named Thompson, but had one named Townsend, who was also summoned to testify today.

GOT NAVY INFORMATION

Mermey, who has been employed with W. H. Baldwin to advocate a low sugar tariff in the pending tariff bill, said he had met Townsend some time ago and had "engaged in casual conversation."

Questioned about a reference in one of his letters that in case of war the United States would not defend the Philippines, Mermey said he was told this by a Navy lieutenant in the Navy. He said the statement was made in a "casual conversation" but he did not know [illegible] (the officer's name). The reference in the letter which was addressed to Baldwin said:

"You told confidentially that in time of war we would make no attempt to defend the Philippines."

Lady Townsend was called and said he had had no recollection of having met Mermey.

Townsend said the commission had no confidential information which could not be given out.

Chief of Naval Construction Views the Constitution During Boston Visit

Announcement was made at the Boston Navy Yard today that the work of reconstructing the frigate Constitution, better known as "Old Ironsides," is about 75 per cent completed and, that within six or seven weeks, she will be floated out of drydock. The hull has been finished and painted and the copper sheathing will be put on when this work is completed.

The sum of $300,000 more is needed for masts and rigging and other equipment before the ship is 100 per cent complete.

Rear Admiral George A. Rock, construction chief of the navy, paid an unexpected visit to the Boston Navy Yard today and, in company with Capt. Clayton M. Simmers, yard manager, and Lieut. John A. Lord, in charge of the reconstruction of the "Old Ironsides," viewed the historic frigate in drydock.

Both Rear Admiral Andrews and Admiral Rock said the visit of Admiral Rock had nothing to do with the work on he Constitution. He came to Boston to lecture this afternoon before young naval constructor a the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and, having a few hours to spare, decided to visit the Navy Yard.

'Judge' Lloyd George Cheered by Prisoner

Carnarvon, Wales, Jan. 9 (AP)—Former Premier David Lloyd George appeared in a new role today when he took his seat for the first time on the magistrate's bench as chairman of the Carnarvon County quarter sessions, in the courthouse where nearly 40 years ago he practiced as a solicitor.

The first prisoner with whom he dealt left the dock calling for three cheers for Mayor George, one of the merciful men who had been seated. The prisoner was 70-year-old Samuel Dew, charged with stealing a wheelbarrow. Lloyd George bound him over in the recognizance for 12 months, instead of sending him to prison.

Dew's last downstairs from the dock he cried: "Thank you, Lloyd George. Three cheers for you."

The former Liberal premier, making a speech in the crowded courtroom, recalled that it was 33 years since had appeared for the last time in that court to plead on behalf of the prisoner.

"The prisoner must have been innocent," Lloyd George said amid laughter, "because the jury found him not guilty."

NEUMAN FOILS HUB POLICE ON INQUIRY

Injunction Stops Boston Officer From Seeing Him in Philadelphia

An injunction against members of the Boston police department forbidding them to interview Max Neuman in connection with the murder of Samuel Reinstein at Hotel Huntington several months ago has temporarily halted Inspector Timothy Donovan, now in Philadelphia, in his efforts to have three witnesses identify Neuman as a murderer.

The injunction proceeding were carried on by counsel for Neuman, who is now in St. Joseph's Hospital, Philadelphia, recovering from a bullet wound said to have been inflicted after he had been put on the spot for a rival gangster.

Inspector Donovan had reached the bedside of the prisoner today with his three witnesses when two police officers told him he could not see him as papers forbidding the Boston police from seeing Neuman had been served upon the Public Safety Commission of Philadelphia earlier in the day.

Inspector Donovan notified District Attorney William J. Foley. Foley expressed surprise at the legal move of counsel for Neuman, but ordered Donovan to stay in Philadelphia with his witnesses pending further instructions.

tered mercantile business with his father. As the result of reading the biographies of prominent men he decided to become a banker and so quit business.

He is a strong advocate of legal training as a business asset and many of his friends believe he could pass the Massachusetts bar examinations as a result of his independent reading.

His official report on the Hall-Fax, N. S., relief expedition of which he was appointed commissioner-in-charge by Governor McCall in 1917, is used as a textbook in Harvard University's sociology course.

As a State Senator at 28 he was one of the youngest men to ever hold that office. He grew up his political career as a result of a friendship formed with Roosevelt at times as a delegate to Republican national conventions. It is said he made more speeches in behalf of Roosevelt candidacies than any Bostonian.

ROYAL MATE HEADS OWN REGIMENT

300 Planes Join in Paying Military Tribute to Marie Jose in Holy City

Rome, Jan. 9 (AP)—More than 22,000 men of arms, the pick of Italy's military contingents, passed in review today before the new Princess of Piedmont, Italy's future Queen, who until her marriage to Prince Humbert yesterday was Marie Jose of Belgium.

As the columns passed the royal stand at the Parioli race track, just outside the city, they made "eyes right" in honor of Josie Marie and their prince, and the Belgian and Italian royal families, who also witnessed the ceremony.

The crown prince commanded his own regiment, the 92nd Infantry, from Turin, made up principally of his own native Piedmontese. The regiment was well in the van.

The Parioli ground was ideal for the ceremony. It lies on the left bank of the Tiber with the height of the Villa Glori on the east, the whole of Rome on the south, the dome of St. Peter's in the background and Mt. Mario with a range of pine groves on the west.

PLANES IN AIR REVIEW.

On one side of the royal reviewing stand was located a stand occupied by members of the diplomatic corps. Another similar stand on the other side held the Cabinet, members of the Senate and Chamber and Fascist grand council.

The climax of the review came in an aerial funnel formation by 300 airplanes brought from all of Italy's air camps for the purpose. Slower machines gyrated on the smaller circles with those faster gradually making up the outer circles, thus forming a conic figure outlined in the sky. This is considered one of the most difficult feats of aviation.

Troops most applauded by the crowd were the Bersaglieri, with their feathered hats, who passed at double time, the crack cavalry units with which Italy has always been to the fore, and colonial troops from Tripoli, Eritrea and Somalyland, in unusual and striking uniforms. In addition there was the Fascist militia, in black shirts and fezzes.

HONEYMOON IS DELAYED.

This evening the square before the Quirinal palace will be lighted brilliantly and a special fireworks display will be given in honor of the visit to the west of Rome, lighting up the statue of Garibaldi, hero of the struggle for the Italian unity. There will be a brilliant reception at 10 p. m. by Prince Boncompagni-Ludovisi, governor of Rome.

Tomorrow morning the royal pair will review a procession of Roman school children in the Piazza Di Siena, and in the afternoon they will witness a procession of civil authorities from all over Italy. Tomorrow evening the governor of Rome will be their host at a gala performance at the Royal Opera House.

The Prince and Princess will not start their honeymoon until Saturday, leaving then probably for the royal hunting lodge at San Rossore, near Pisa. Formal entry will be made into Turin, the prince-bridegroom's city of residence, some time next week.

Pope "Happy" at Wedding of Prince and Princess

Vatican City, Jan. 9 (AP)—Pope Pius early today granted an audience to Cardinal Maffi, Archbishop of Pisa, who officiated at yesterday's wedding of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose, and exchanged impressions with him about the ceremony at the Quirine Chapel and the bridal couple's visit to the Vatican.

Cardinal Maffi later said that the Pontiff was most happy and satisfied with the "really worthy and Christian manner" in which the marriage had been celebrated. The Pope later received the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg who presented him with 65 volumes of the official history of Luxembourg bound in blue leather and stamped with the papal seal. He warmly thanked the duchess for her gift and gave her a jubilee medal in gold.

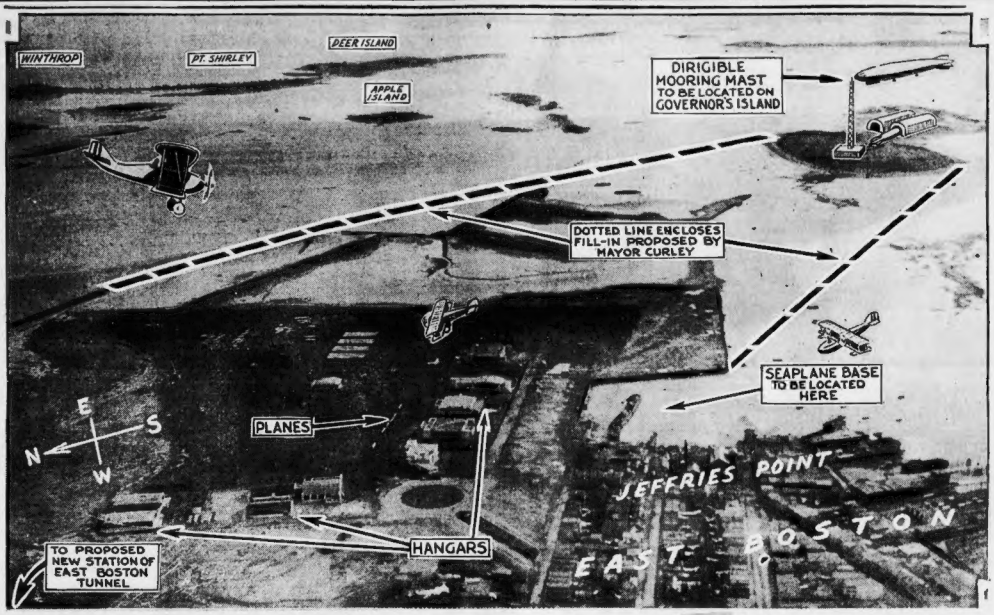
How Mayor Curley Plans to Extend and Improve the Boston Airport



Picture taken by Boston Evening American photographer, from a plane furnished by the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, of the Boston Airport and surroundings to show how the airport would appear if the proposed million-dollar improvement suggested by Mayor Curley is carried out. The crux of the matter is the filling in of the section of the harbor so as to extend the area of the airport to include Governor's Island, a matter that would need the sanction of the War Department, sometimes quite difficult to obtain.

EDDIE CANTOR Rises to Say:

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9—

Now that Princess Marie Jose of Belgium and Crown Prince Humbert of Italy are married, congratulations from an American peasant.

Having been a married actor for almost 16 years, which is equal to 40 years in any other walk of life, I'd like to give the Crown Prince some hints, which might help him:

Never bring home friends for dinner unless you tell your wife in the morning.

If the baby cries during the night, jump right up and say, "I'll heat the bottle, darling." Women love that.

Don't ever brag that your father is a king. Remember, she'll say, "So is my old man, and we have no dictator."

On the maid's day off, suggest going out some place to eat. And if Marie insists on staying home, offer to wash the dishes.

Don't think this is "sissy" stuff. We "he men" in America have been doing it since we got our freedom from the British.

God bless you both.

P. S.—In case you want to stay out some night and play poker with the boys, have Mussolini ask the wife.

Extension Would Put Airport Up to Date

Mayor Curley's announced intention to spend $1,000,000 in developing the Boston Municipal Airport will bring the port up to even terms with any other airport in the country, and when he has finished his intended development, the airport over on Jefferies Point will not only be large enough to accommodate the largest airplanes, but will be one of the few airports in the country possessing unobstructed approaches from every side.

The first thing on the program after obtaining the flats on the southeast side of the present airport from the government will be the dredging and filling of these flats, gradually extending the work out to Governor's Island. It is proposed to take over the island and establish a mooring mast on it for the dirigible traffic that surely will come with the passing of the years.

Seaplanes will also come into their own during the coming year, with adequate ramps and facilities for handling the large and small craft installed on the bulkhead nearest Maverick st., with marine railways leading down to the water at its lowest ebb, and a road made of macadam or some other substance will lead to the commercial hangars 300 feet away.

With the filling in of the marsh adjoining the airport, even before the fill is extended all the way to Governor's Island, the airport will be more than twice its present size, with runways of more than 4000 feet extending into the prevailing winds.

Dry Agent Freed in R. I. Rum Case

Providence, Jan. 9 (AP)—Because the state was not ready to go to trial and was unable to present a witness, Prohibition Agent Alvah H. Richardson charged with conspiracy to steal liquor from the farm of Herbert Cuzer, Tiverton rum-runner, was found not guilty by a jury on direction of Federal Judge Ira Lloyd Letts today after the court had refused to grant the prosecution another continuance of the trial.

The case had been transferred to the United States Court after Richardson was indicted by a state grand jury.

HOUSE WETS IN NEW DRIVE ON PROHIBITION

Anti-Dry Law Members Plan Organized Move to Appeal Volstead Act

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—An effort to organize the wet bloc of the House, on the premise that prohibition is a failure and modification imperative, was today's contribution to the controversy which has raged in Washington since the Christmas holidays.

A meeting of House members not in sympathy with the prohibition law was called for today, marking one of the first coherent moves by congressional wets to present a united front in their attempts to repeal the Volstead law.

"This country," said Representative Laguardia, Republican, New York, one of the wet leaders "has gone through the same thing that Canada and other countries which had prohibition have gone through. Canada and the other countries have changed their laws and now only this country and Finland remain.

SAYS DRYS 'DEFEATED'

"Conditions speak for themselves," he continued, and the wets are taking conditions as we find them and putting them into the record.

"The drys are defeated. Prohibition has reached its peak. Our problem is to deal with the subject and put it to the fore—the one solution is putting the alcoholic liquor traffic under proper regulation. The states that want it, should have it.

"Dry champions are now in dispute among themselves as to the facts and the country is alive to the problem. Prohibition has one last lease of life: transfer of administration from the treasury to the department of justice. If enforcement of prohibition fails there, that is the end of it."

Representative Linthicum, of Maryland, is a leader of the Democratic group identified with the wet bloc.

KILLINGS ARE SCORED

The prohibition issue was renewed again in the House with two wets assailing what they termed "dry killings."

A Republican wet, Representative Schafer of Wisconsin, attacked the shooting of a Washington citizen by an enforcement officer on Tuesday night, which, Schafer said, when the officer was conducting a raid without a search warrant.

Mrs. Rogers Urges U. S. Buy Wool Now

WHEELER GETS AFTER LABOR DETECTIVES

Washington, Jan. 9 (AP)—An investigation of the activities of charitan private detectives who secretly, to their own financial benefit, enter the ranks of organized labor, foment industrial disputes and mislead both worker and employer, is proposed by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana.

The measure contains charges "drawn out by various court proceedings and published investigations."

These allegations are that "a large number of private detective agencies are obtaining large sums of money from business concerns and organizations by falsely representing movements among their employees, by joining labor organizations and advocating revolutionary methods for the purpose of discrediting said labor organizations and by manufacturing stories concerning radical propaganda and alleged plans for the use of violence in industrial conflicts."

The resolution asserts, in addition, that such activities "are detrimental to peaceful relationships between employers and employes, setting up a system of espionage in industry, thriving on unrest and fear they create and spreading false rumors and scares and often bringing about strikes to maintain their alleged services."

CROOKER SEEKS RIGHT TO SEE BLACK DUCK

Washington, Jan. 9 (INS)—Conrad W. Crooker of Boston, representing the Liberal Civic League, called on Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today for permission to examine the rum-runner Black Duck, on which three bootleggers were lain by Coast Guardsmen two weeks ago.

He was told the case was in charge of the Department of Justice and a conference was arranged for him with Asst. Atty-Gen. Youngquist later in the day.

The league has denounced the action of the Coast Guard in the case.

Divers Hunt Guns Hurled Off Black Duck

Newport, Jan. 9—After taking precautions for secrecy, two Coast Guard boats began a search today for guns believed to have been aboard the rum-running Black Duck when three of her crew were killed and one wounded.

The search was conducted by divers off Ft. Adams, where the Black Duck, with its blood-wet deck, was captured by the Coast Guards who fired on the craft.

According to the understanding the Coast Guard cutter Eagle and the rum-chaser C G-241 began operations in accordance with the expressed wish of U. S. Dist.-Atty. Henry M. Boss, who said that if guns are found the whole aspect of the case will be changed.

New Move Is Made in Taylor Murder Case

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9 (INS)—Although frankly skeptical of obtaining any authentic evidence bearing on the William Desmond Taylor murder case, Dist. Atty Buron Fitts today had completed arrangements to secure the latest statements of Otis Hefner, ex-convict, and Henry Peavey, colored, who once served as Taylor's house boy.

"I want to keep the file of the Taylor case and all the records as complete as possible," declared Fitts. "In line with this policy I have ordered that these statements of Peavey and Hefner be taken and placed with other records of the murder."

Both Hefner and Peavey, in their latest statements, sought to throw suspicion on a motion picture actress prominently mentioned in the Taylor case subsequent to the murder of the motion picture director.

A half-mile area is mentioned as the banned area. Judicial decision will come later.

Southern Baseball Man Is Suicide

New Orleans, La., Jan. 9 (INS)—Failing health today was ascribed by relatives and associates as the motive which caused Alexander Julius Heinemann of the Southern League to commit suicide here last night.

Heinemann, 51, a native of New Orleans and head of the local baseball club for nearly a quarter of a century, was found dead beside a desk in his office. He had fired a pistol bullet through his mouth.

Friends attributed his suicide to declining health, rather to the losses of $350,000 in the recent stock market crash.

5 DEATHS FROM PARROTS ROUSE GERMANY

Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Psittachosis, or "parrot's disease," scare, which has been roused by many recent deaths in widespread parts of Germany, is gaining ground in German seaports and is causing some alarm to the authorities, who fear an unfavorable reaction on overseas trade.

One patient died today from "parrot's disease" in the Barmbeck Hospital of Hamburg, making five deaths there out of 20 cases reported.

Many parrots aboard a South american steamer were destroyed yesterday before landing.

Reports from Dresden say that an entire family of nine persons is in the hospital infected with the disease. A parrot that they owned died recently.

At Horst, Pomerania, a woman who received a parrot from Hamburg has been stricken with the disease.

Mortality in psittachosis is 37 per cent. The disease can be described as a combination of typhoid, malaria and pneumonia, with most deaths resulting from the pulmonary infection. The patient is in continual pain, parts of the body are swollen and delirium follows.

Some victims go mad and all who recover are feeble and anaemic for several weeks of convalescence.

WOMEN "REDS" MOB COP, FIGHT RESERVES

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—Police reserves, a police emergency squad and a dozen or more patrolmen on regular patrol twice charged a crowd of about 150 Communists to break up a demonstration in front of a 5 West 26th st. shoe concern today.

Patrolman Thomas Julia suffered lacerations of the face at the hands of women participants in the disturbance. Many of the demonstrators were "rounded up, charged with disorderly conduct.

The police said that the shoe concern, the Dan Palter Shoe, is not involved in a labor dispute, but demonstrators insisted that employes of the company were on strike.

The demonstration was fairly peaceful until police ordered participants to disperse. The women then rushed Julia, screaming and scratching at his face. Julia defended himself without using his night stick, but the demonstration grew in intensity and a fellow patrolman telephoned for the reserves and the emergency squad.

The police surrounded the crowd and charged in successive waves. They did not use their night sticks.

Try Daylight Hop From N.Y. to Florida

Port Washington, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP)—In an effort to prove the feasibility of a daylight flight from New York to Florida, an amphibian plane took off today for Miami.

Piloted by Donald G. Van De Water, with Paul L. Foster as copilot, the plane left the water here at 8:30 a. m. and planned to follow the coastal and inland water route to the south. The pilots expected to reach Miami this afternoon.

The cruiser went aground off the coast of Algiers several days ago, ripping a large hole in her side in striking jagged, protuding rocks. All the crew were taken off safely.

CHICAGO POLICE, FIREMEN ARE REINSTATED

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—Policemen and firemen discharged under the reduced 1930 city budget were ordered to return to duty today.

Sustention of Mayor Thompson's veto of the slash in appropriations by the majority of the council was immediately followed with reinstatement orders from both Police Commissioner Russell and Fire Commissioner Goodrich.

All possible haste was made to spread the orders to bureaus and stations; the police recall was sent over teletype while the fire alarm telegraph hurried the good news to discharged firemen.

Commissioner Goodrich ordered all closed fire stations reopened today while property turned in by both policemen and firemen was to be reissued.

At the same time, Health Commissioner Kegel ordered the reinstatement of all employes discharged in his department.

SETBACKS HOLD UP WILKINS' RETURN

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS
Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition

Copyright, 1930, by the New York American and Universal Service, Inc. Copyright in Great Britain, France, Germany and all other countries. Reproduction prohibited in whole or in part.

Deception Island (Antarctica), via S. S. Melville and KUP, wireless Station, Jan. 9—Setbacks and hardships which we have experienced so far have delayed exploration which we expected to finish up by the first of the year. It is unlikely that we will return to New York until April.

The time needed to make the journey by steamer along the pack ice to longitude 100 West, making flights to the coast at various points, is too great for us to leave before that time.

The dangerous uncertainty of flights over the pack ice, much greater than that presented by the long coastwise flight to the Ross Sea, and the time that must elapse before we can be certain of a safe return, prevents placing an immediate order for the submarine in which we had expected to cross the Arctic Ocean during this coming July.

We are unable to make the Ross Sea flight because of the absence of a suitable taking off field.

Accordingly, my Arctic plans must be postponed until next year.

Had my work here been successfully accomplished by the first of the year, the order for the submarine would have been confirmed, allowing the necessary six months for construction and trials.

Labor Calmly Reads as Parliament Gasps

London, Jan. 9 (AP)—Socialists in Commons are taking a running start to break another old conservative tradition in parliamentary circles.

Conservatives gasp, Liberals look pained, but the Laborites go right ahead and read their speeches.

For generations it has been deemed a prerequisite for election to the House to have an ability to orate extemporaneously at great length without even the aid of notes.

But more and more Labor ministers and important members are very frankly rattling their sheaves of papers and openly reading their speeches.

There have always been a few exceptions to the unwritten tradition. Ministers making important policy statements have usually assured themselves and their colleagues of accuracy by reading prepared documents.

Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Lloyd George both availed themselves of the privilege during their days as prime ministers. Mr. MacDonald does it, too, and is very frank about it, though with ordinary discourse he relies on nothing but his ready wit and memory.

Miss Margaret Bondfield, the sole woman minister, when introducing her unemployment insurance bill, read her clearly stated exposition of the bill from typewritten sheets. Another woman member caused a very grave shock when she read her maiden speech from a loose-leaf note book, and made no attempt to conceal it.

Thomas to Talk on Unemployment

London, Jan. 9 (AP)—An important statement on the financial side of the unemployment question will be made by J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal and Minister of Employment, at a meeting of business men in Manchester tomorrow.

The minister is faced with a 205,643 increase in unemployed during the past two weeks and, though this is not surprising after Christmas, it brings the total of unemployed in Great Britain to 1,510,200, an increase of 410,075 since the Labor Government came into power.

"COMING EVENTS cast their shadows before"

[Thomas Campbell, 1777-1844]

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Why let over-indulgence ruin the flattering curves that make the modern figure so seductive? Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the irresistible youthfulness of the modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in those that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

HAGUE PARLEY IN HOPELESS DEADLOCK

London, Jan. 9 (INS)—After 60 minutes of fruitless discussion, the meeting of the "Big Six" delegations to the reparations conference at The Hague adjourned today with the situation as hopeless as before.

Efforts to obtain a compromise on the sanctions issue failed, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from The Hague declared.

Adjournment was due to refusal of the German delegates to recede from their demands that military sanctions in the event of default under the Young plan be abolished. They hold that the former allied nations should trust to Germany's honor and good will that the reparations annuities will be paid regularly.

In support of this contention, they referred the French, British and Italian delegates to the separate debt agreement recently concluded between Germany and the United States, in which America refused to take advantage of the sanctions clause in the Versailles treaty.

The French, on the other hand, steadfastly maintained that their only guarantee of payment is a sanctions clause. They pointed out that while they fully trust the present government of Germany, they have no assurances that at some future date the nationalist elements, which strongly favor repudiation of all reparations claims, might not gain the political ascendancy in that nation.

As the meeting was adjourned, Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer and leader of the British delegation, sharply rebuked the Germans for "not displaying a more conciliatory spirit."

INSULL'S DRIVE IN MAINE COST $500,000

Winter Park, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP)—Dr. Earnest H. Gruening of the Portland (Me.) News told the Rollins College institute of statesmanship here today that the Insull power companies spent $500,000 in an unsuccessful campaign to change the laws of Maine to their advantage.

"For 15 years after their acquisition of every important hydro-electric company in the State, except one, the Insulls tried to get a law passed permitting exportation from the State of hydro-electric power," Dr. Gruening declared.

OUSTED GOVERNOR.

"This bill finally was put through," he added, "after the power interests had lobbied, ousted a governor who opposed them, dethroned legislators and replaced them with others and otherwise resorted to underhanded methods."

The bill passed the Legislature and went to the people for referendum, he said.

"The governor went out of his way to urge the people to vote 'yes' on the measure, namely for export. In the five months intervening before the referendum, Maine witnessed the most extravagantly financed campaign in history.

DEAL MADE IN TEXAS

"Insull's man, Walter Wyman, inadvertently admitted in the course of public debate that this money—estimated by his opponent speaker at $500,000 and never denied by the power organs—came from profits of a deal made in Texas by one of the Insull holding companies there."

Dr. Gruening said the power companies carried out an extensive advertising campaign in all newspapers in the state except the Portland News and the Kennebunk Star. These opposed the campaign and were branded "Bolshevika" by supporters of the power companies, he added.

Despite the campaign, Dr. Gruening said the measure was defeated by 8000 votes.

Cambridge Firemen Pension Bill Filed

A bill to allow members of the Cambridge fire department who have seen 25 years' service and have attained the age of 65 to retire and be placed on the pension roll at one half their regular salary was filed today with the Legislature by Rep. Dennis F. McCarthy of Cambridge.

Soviet Guards 264 Millions in Jewels

Moscow, Jan. 9 (AP)—For better safekeeping Russia's collection of crown jewels, probably the finest array of gems ever assembled at one time, have been placed in a huge steel cage in the State bank, in a great coffer resembling a steel-barred cell in an American prison.

The dazzling gems, which date from the time of the extravagant Catherine the Great to the last Czar, are placed in plush-lined leather cases on long tables within the "cage," where they may be viewed by Americans and other foreign visitors.

Upon presentation of proper credentials visitors are admitted to the cage to see this wonderful Arabian Nights display of diamonds, rubies, pearls and emeralds much the same as they would be allowed to see a prisoner in a cell. No object in Soviet Russia today, except it be the body of Vladimir Lilyitch Lenin, which lies in state in a wooden tomb in Red sq., attracts the attention and excites the curiosity of visitors quite so much as the crown jewels.

In making the collection the emperors and empresses of Russia of centuries past ransacked the diamond marts of two hemispheres and spent staggering fortunes. Special guards keep a vigilant eye on the precious treasure.

The principal gem is the magnificent crown worn by Catherine the Great at her coronation in 1762. This is valued at $24,000,000.

Mrs. Hoover Hopes to Receive Judiciary

Washington, Jan. 9 (INS)—Mrs. Hoover was conserving her strength today in the hope she might be able to join the President tonight in the receiving line at the judiciary reception, first of the functions of the White House winter social season.

All week the President's wife has been suffering from an attack of the grip, contracted when she failed to heed a cold and undertook the rigors of the big public New Year's receptin. Since then she has remained close to her apartment, cancelling all engagements. Dr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, believed she would be up for tonight's affair.

Berlin Is Stirred by 'Mercy Slaying'

Berlin, Jan. 9—Another "mercy slaying" attracted widespread attention today when Frau Ilse Genehrt went on trial charged with the murder of her five weeks' old son.

Frau Genehrt, who is 21, has admitted killing her son, claiming she wanted him to die rather than grow up to a miserable existence. Physicians, she said, had pronounced the infant suffering from an incurable ailment.

The case recalls that of a young Englishman, Richard Corbett, who was recently tried and acquitted on similar charges in France. Corbett admitted killing his mother because he could not stand to see her suffer from the ravages of cancer after physicians had convinced him the inroads of the disease would eventually result in her death.

This is the dullest period of the year for upholsterers. Rather than shut down his plant, through lack of work, a manufacturer of High Grade Living Room Furniture came to us with a proposition that fairly staggered us "50% off!" he said. "Just give me enough business to keep the factory open." And that's exactly what we're saying to you! "50% off!" That's the way we bought them and that's how you can have them. 3 Pieces complete—as shown above. Sofa—Club Chair and the NEW THRONE chair—Complete—

REGINALD DENNY AND ROLAND YOUNG CLINCH 'MADAME SATAN' LEADS

DENNY WILL HAVE BUSY SEASON

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9—Some of the rumors which have accompanied the cast ing of Cecil B. De Mille's next picture, "Madame Satan," have been definitely settled. You can depend on seeing Reginald Denny in one of the leading roles, as reported in this column recently, and Roland Young in another.

THE contract between Denny and De Mille which was signed this week, includes an unusual clause which gives Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer call on Mr. Denny's services for two more pictures during the year in addition to "Madame Satan." The additional two will be arranged to avoid any conflict with Denny's current contract to the Sono-Art Co., where he also has two or three more pictures to make. One of these "The Dark Chapter," is now in production. Incidentally, the blonde, Miriam Seegar, brought from New York's stage to Hollywood by Paramount, who has been loaned by that studio to Reginald Denny for his leading lady in "The Dark Chapter." Between Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Sono-Art, Reginald's future for the next year seems assured, to say the least.

WONDER why all the secrecy about Beatrice Lillie and Fox. Every time I asked anyone what company had contracts for the well known English comedienne I would get a reproachful look and a promise that soon I would know all. The all apparently is that Bea will make a London revue with some number similar to the one she created in Charlot's revue, Phil Dorsay, Victor McLaglen, Maureen O'Sullivan and Janet Gaynor are lined up for this Lillie special. Oh, yes, Bea makes one more picture for Fox.

SOUNDS as if the League of Nations were in session at the various studios these days. Never have I heard so many languages, German, Spanish, French, Russian and what have you. Paramount has already started to make "The Doctor's Secret" in Spanish with an all Spanish cast. J. Carner Ribalta, Spanish dramatist, is translating "The Doctor's Secret" and coaching the Spanish dialogue. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has also a Spaniard by the name of Solf de Alberich who is doing their Spanish translations. What an opportunity for foreign dramatists who never had a chance until the talkies came into being.

THERE will always be I suppose circus stories to cheer the hearts of those who love the aroma of th. tan bark and sawdust. Pathe is about to indulge in a circus talkie and will have the circus noises incorporated. Judging from the success of "The Barker" I should say it ought to go very well. Helen Twelvetrees and Fred Scott will be featured and Joseph Santley will direct but as yet the child is nameless.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Diana Kane Fitzmaurice carrying a miniature of her baby around to all the parties. George Fitzmaurice, not to be outdone, also wearing a locket with Peola's portrait. Harry D'Arrast putting a collar on Skippy so he can be found if he wanders away from the home fireside again. Skippy wagging the place where his tail ought to be because he is so glad to be home. John Stahl back from New York where he went to look over the plays George Duryea home again from location. Blanche Sweet visiting Warner Brothers' Hollywood Theater to see herself in her first talkie. Lupe Velez denouncing people who wear long gloves. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

English Pianist Gives Concert Here Saturday

Harold Samuel, English pianist who plays at Jordan Hall this Saturday afternoon, has been known for years as an ideal interpreter of the music of Bach. This music, which has become proverbial as a synonym for boredom for many concert-goers, was given remarkable vitality by Samuel.

24 Hour Screen Program at Strand, Scollay Sq.

Who would ever have believed that the time would arrive in Boston when a moving talkie picture house would keep open continuously 24 hours a day? But that is just the policy that Louis M. Boas, who operates the Park Theater, now featuring "The Lost Zeppelin," has inaugurated at his Strand Theater in Scollay sq. Any time in the day or night, for the whole 24 hours, one can drop in and see and hear talking pictures.

Starts Second Fox Film

Hamilton MacFadden will direct his second for Fox, "The Mad Singer."

"Pygmalion" to Be Final Theater Guild Play Here

The last of the Theater Guild plays to be given during the present subscription season at Hollis will be Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion." It will open next Monday and continue for two weeks. "Major Barbara," another Shaw comedy, is now rounding out its final week at the same playhouse.

GUILD PLAYER GIVEN STAGE START HERE

JANE WHEATLEY, grand dame of the Theater Guild Acting Company, appearing this week in Shaw's "Major Barbara" and for the next two weeks in the same author's "Pygmalion" at the Hollis, received her first training for the stage in Boston. Her early instructors were Mrs. Jessie L. Southwick in dramatic art, William J. Rolfe in Shakespearean reading and Edward Baxter Felton in voice culture. Miss Wheatley is one of the comparatively few players born in New York, Mecca of aspiring actors. She was born at Wheatley Hills, Long Island, a Gotham suburb, named after her family.

Jane Wheatley

Miss Wheatley divided her study days in assiduous application with her tutors, seeing and analyzing the art of many of the great players of the day, including Mansfield, Julia Marlowe, Henry Miller, Viola Allen and William Faversham and studying books on the drama at the public library.

"Two of my greatest thrills of those days were getting William Faversham's autograph on a photograph and "easing in" at a rehearsal of Richard Mansfield at the Hollis, where he was preparing and acting in "The First Violin," she relates.

"Boston gave me the inspiration to work and work hard. When my funds ran low I spent my evenings at the public library reading books on dramatic art and biographies of great actors. My album and I were frequently the last to leave the library."

Miss Wheatley has since been in supporting casts with such stars as Viola Allen, William Faversham, the late Henry Miller, Ethel Barrymore and many others. She has appeared in a number of Theater Guild plays, including "Ambush," "Arms and the Man" and "The Guardsman." During the past season in New York this actress played an important role in "The Camel Through the Needle's Eye," and won much praise for her subtle characterization.

STATE DANCER WAS GERMAN WAR ACE

A FORMER German air ace, Ernesto Wetter-Stein, is appearing at Loew's State this week as a featured dancer, together with his charming partner, Miss Cuzette Cosco. They are a part of the Modernas Art Flashes. Ernesto & Cuzette are already recognized as one of the leading exponents of the dance in this country and the reason for this is that the entire routine was made up by Ernesto with the sole purpose of combining the gliding, motion of German dance with the acrobatic features of the American dance. The reception accorded them by audiences everywhere proves that this originality is appreciated.

Cuzette Cosco

While in Germany, Ernesto was an idol at the famous Palais d' Dance in Berlin, remaining there several years. His delightful partner is a former Ziegfeld girl and has appeared in the Follies Bergere, "Music Box Revue," "George White's Scandals" and "The Studio Girl." Miss Cuzette is an American girl of Hungarian descent.

Photograph of Doug, Jr. for Bowdoin Patrons

Owing to the popularity of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., with patrons of the Bowdoin Sq. Theater, the management will, on next Monday evening, present a souvenir photograph of that star in his favorite pose. Beginning Monday Young Fairbanks will be viewed on the screen there in "Fast Life," a story of the jazz age.

MET AUDIENCES GET "INSIDE" ON FRESH AIR TAXICAB

"AMOS 'N' ANDY," two of the world's most widely celebrated comedians and the highest paid radio performers, are now appearing as the headline attractions at the Publix Metropolitan, for their only appearance in New England. Radio fans here have the opportunity to see and hear this "joy pair of the air," in person on the Metropolitan stage, where they will be playing until and including next Wednesday. While in Boston this famous pair will broadcast their regular nightly program over the NBC network, using a specially constructed studio for that purpose, sending their programs to New York by special wire, from where they will be re-broadcast all over the country. In real life "Amos 'n' Andy" are Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll, and their rise to the heights of popular favor has been one of the most spectacular events in the history of radio entertainment. Four years ago they were practically unknown and unheard of in the show world, either of the air or stage; although they had been working and playing together producing home-talent shows in towns and small cities in which they appeared as a team of dialect comedians.

Freeman Gosden "Amos"

Charles J. Correll "Andy"

Today they are undoubtedly heard by more people every night than any other two men in the world, and their fan mail runs up to thousands of letters daily from all parts of the country. In various radio popularity contests they have ranked first almost invariably since they really became widely known.

Besides their radio work this team has appeared in many of the largest theaters of the country, in person, doing both black and white comedy dialogues, so that now it would be extremely difficult to find anyone who has not heard the fortunes of the owners of the "Fresh Air Taxi-cab Company, Incorporated," whose adventures every night have delighted millions.

They are appearing at the Publix Metropolitan in addition to the usual stage and screen program, which includes "The Kibitzer," with Harry Green, Mary Brian and Neil Hamilton, and the peppy Publix show, "Jazz Preferred."

"Silence Is Golden" is truly spoken of Classified Want Ads—no noise, but they make a lot of stir—called Results.

Vigorous Masculinity Marks New Garb for Beaches

IT might be said truthfully that the Lido is the fashion sundial for our southern season. The shadow that fashions cast there tell the tempo of the mode weeks later here.

This year the beach mode has gone down to the sea in more ways than one, for many of the prophesied styles will be those which found their origins among the picturesque haunts of the European sailors.

There is a vigorous masculinity to beach garb which contrasts sharply with the feminine trends of last season. Not that there will not be women who will sharply cling to their pajamas and their dressmaker suits—but there will be a new element which abandons frills for amazing trousers, shorts, shirts and workmanlike beach suits.

WE have had shorts in underwear and shorts in bathing suits—but now the ubiquitous pantie has taken to the beach! The 1930 version of the beach shorts is a trimly masculine little costume boasting cotton or flannel shorts, usually pleated, and a shirt or slipover sweater. A scarf and a beret or sun hat may complete the picture but most often the costume remains quite unadorned. The regulation mechanic suit or overall also will be worn. At the Lido the mechanic suit was a great success especially in navy blue!

The beach pajama so dearly beloved of resorts is taking a more inconspicuous part in the scheme of things this year. Many will be seen, of course, but not with the overwhelming popularity of former seasons. Pajamas which combine a solid color and a print are favored. The trousers are wide and blouses sleeveless with or without accompanying jacket.

A very good example of the new pajama is sketched in the group here—it comprises wide trousers in embroidered print with legs slit almost to the knees. A jaunty matching cap tops the fair sun bather's head while her white silk crepe blouse with low decolletage greatly resembles a bathing suit top. Still another typical pajama outfit, not sketched, has wide sailor trousers of linen with a blue turtle-neck sweater.

THE decrease in the popularity of the pajama may be directly attributed to the rise of the separate trouser in general favor. Linen or duck trousers fashioned in sailor fashion or like the Chinese trousers shown here are worn with jersey shirts or gayly striped sweaters similar to those of a Basque fisherman.

Bathing suits do one of two things—they either swim or sun. Those for swimming are as brief and workmanlike as possible, whereas those for sunning indulge in many little novelties of design. Two good examples of the new bathing suit mode are illustrated here.

ONE being worn by the casually languorous person at the left is ideal for cultivating a coat of tan. It has lingerie straps fastened to a yoke, which may be tightened to allow the straps to drop for sun-tanning. Brief shorts form the lower part. The color combination is yellow jersey, trimmed with capucine colored silk crepe.

The second suit is a versatile bit for it can remove its skirt and plunge nonchalantly in for a strenuous swim. The tights have an extreme suntan neckline.

The beach dress is seen here and there, one smart version being a coal-like dress which is worn over a sun suit. Beach coats are short or three-quarter length and are usually fashioned of terry-cloth, jersey or linen. Prints are seen with ensemble effects.

THE value of contrast was recently proved again when a famous actress appeared on an equally famous beach in a robe of dead white Turkish toweling. In a group that wore, without exception, the most colorful costumes this robe caused a sensation.

The incident is another evidence of the importance dead white will assume in the spring and summer as well as the present evening mode.

To Plan Campaign in Legislature

ATTENTION of the thousands of club women throughout the state will center upon the fight for revision of the present book law and a bill to regulate overnight camps and tourists' lodging houses when the annual mid-winter meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs opens on January 22, at the Hotel Statler.

The Women's Educational Club of West Newton is the hostess club for this meeting, at which it will observe its golden anniversary.

Mrs Fred L. Pigeon state legislative chairman, will present the legislative program of the Federation, which recommends eight matters for study and consideration.

These are: A bill to abolish capital punishment, milk legislation, revision of the present book law, a bill to regulate overnight camps and tourists' lodging houses, anti-steel trap bill, Massachusetts state forestry bill, the special commission to study children's laws, and the status of the bill-board.

At two special meetings of the executive board of the State Federation it was voted to take action at the mid-winter meeting on the revision of the present book law and upon the bill to regulate overnight camps, and that a resolution be presented regarding the Massachusetts forestry bill and the special commission studying children's laws.

Local legislative chairmen are urged to write Mrs. Pigeon for printed matter relating to each bill, that each club may help make this year's legislative work more effective in the General Court and more educational in the community.

Mrs. Joseph C. Otis, president of the Women's Educational Club of West Newton, will make the welcome address at the opening session of the mid-winter meeting, and Mrs. Azel A. Packard, State president, will respond.

The report of the resolutions committee will be presented by Mrs. Robert J. Culbert, and that of the credentials committee by Mrs. William H. Emerson.

The "Cause and Cure of War" conference will be a feature of the afternoon session. The report of the Foundation Fund of the General Federation by Mrs. Arthur Devins Potter, General Federation director, will also be awaited with keen interest.

Special music will open this session.

The delegates' tickets for this meeting are pink. They will be mailed to each president of a federated club by Mrs. Charles L. Fuller, 187 Moraine st, Brockton.

White tickets, necessary for admission of club members not delegates, may be had from Mrs. Charles G. Wetherbee, 47 Terrace ave., Newton Highlands, and luncheon tickets from Mrs. Joseph A. McDonald, 344 Austin st., West Newton. No luncheon tickets will be sold after January 15.

All resolutions must be presented to Mrs. Robert J. Culbert, chairman of resolutions, 71 Elm Hill ave., Roxbury, one week previous to the meeting.

NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION

Discussion of some of the important bills before this year's Legislature will occupy a meeting of the Massachusetts Department of the National Civic Federation tomorrow at the Copley-Plaza at 2 o'clock.

Delegates from the legislative committees from various parts of the state are to hear Edward H. Weeks, Jr., and Samuel H. Mendum speak on book censorship and the bill presented by Weeks for revision of the present book law.

Leland H. Powers and Dr. George H. Bigelow will discuss the compulsory vaccination bill, Dr. Bigelow also speaking on the milk inspectors bill.

The bill for regulating wayside camps and tourists' lodgings will be debated by Samuel H. Thompson, president of the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce, and Fred D. Griggs, president of the Approved Wayside Stations, Inc.

Mrs. Joseph Attwill, chairman of the legislative committee, will preside, assisted by Mrs. L. Cushing Goodhue and Mrs. John G. Pat frey, vice-chairman.

The annual meeting of this body will be held on January 20 with a supper at the Copley-Plaza.

MUNICIPAL ISSUES CONFERENCE

"Unless we can make the management of our cities as much a part of our real lives as the management of our homes it will not be successful," Mrs. F. Lewis Slade director of the New York City League of Women Voters, told the conference on Municipal Issues at a luncheon meeting at the Women's City Club.

"We need to take political life more personally," Mrs. Slade continued. "Every child should start with the idea that he will some day be President of the United States. He may then stand a chance of getting as far as the city council at least."

Mrs. Slade described the manner in which her organization keeps tabs on the municipal board of estimate and apportionment. A special league committee meets weekly, she said, and receives the report of its secretary, who attends every meeting of the board of estimate.

"While official attention is seldom paid to protests by our league they serve to arouse public opinion," Mrs Slade said, "as in the recent case in which the board of estimate, re-elected to succeed it, said, voted to raise its own salaries by voting a raise for the incoming board."

The sessions of the municipal issues conference close late today. Each session has attracted 300 to 500 women seriously studying the needs of our city.

SECRET POLICE STAR OF N. Y. FORCE DEAD

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—Unhonored and unsung, save in the secret files of the New York police department, Patrolman George P. Gilbert is dead, at the age of 35.

Nobody, save his superiors in the department, ever paid much attention to him while he was alive. Four times they commended him—but in secret. He never even attained the rank of a detective. He was just a patrolman, with a passion for record.

For Gilbert was an "under-cover man," one of the most accomplished and courageous detectives the department ever had. Plenty of arrests that made big stories can now be placed to his credit. Others got the credit at the time.

OFTEN BEATEN UP

An inconspicuous little man with a slight limp and an innocent expression, he did not look like a policeman. But his ability to look and act like anyone from a Bowery outcast to an intellectual radical mounted to genius.

From 1913 to 1916 he lived in the innermost circle of anarchists without ever being found out. He was so good at it that even fellow-policemen, not knowing who he really was, regarded him as a dangerous man. Several times friends they beat him up badly.

Once he was suspected by I. W. W.'s into whose confidence he had worked his way. Several had been killed in a bombing. Somebody "higher up" ordered Gilbert to go to a police station and identify the bodies. He was "spotted" and that night the I. W. W.'s tried him in a Harlem cellar. Some were in favor of immediate execution, but he talked his way out.

DEMANDED HIS LIFE

His most virulent antagonist was Amadeo Poliganni, also a police "under-cover man," although Gilbert did not know it. Poliganni knew all about Gilbert, however. He demanded that Gilbert be put to death at once—taking a chance that, by so doing, he would cause a division of opinion. It worked. Poliganni is still in the service, although no longer an "under-cover man."

In March, 1915, there was a plot to blow up St. Patrick's Cathedral. Gilbert tipped his superiors. When the bombers arrived the cathedral was alive with detectives, posing as worshippers, sightseers, and even as scrubwomen. The bombers were arrested. There was a story in the papers. And for Gilbert—secret commendation.

During the war Gilbert was assigned to look after Pro-German and radical conspirators among the waterfront, working as a longshoreman. He was active in nearly all detection of alien and anarchistic activities.

THREE GET LIFE TERMS IN R. I. HOLDUP

Providence, Jan. 9—Five men who participated in a holdup and murder in Norwood, R. I., two years ago, were given sentences in superior court here today by Judge Capotosto. Three were given life, one 35 years and another 10 years in prison.

Those sentenced to life imprisonment are Nazerino Sococcio, Philip Galione and Ernest Silvio. Charles Capace was sentenced to 15 years and Salvatore Sococcio was sentenced to 10 years.

In sentencing the quintet, Judge Capotosto said: "Gangland has got to learn there are persons in this State who cannot be intimidated or frightened. These men tried to frighten and bulldoze everybody, including their own lawyers. They thought they could not be brought to justice."

The five men sentenced today held up Howard Corbett in his Norwood resort December 12, 1927, and shot him to death.

GREAT BLIZZARD HALTS SEARCH FOR EIELSON

By SAM McAULEY

Member of Aviation Corporation's Eielson Relief Expedition

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Seattle Post-Intelligencer and Toronto Star.)

Nulato, Alaska, Jan. 9—The frozen land is in the grip of an Arctic storm frustrating our every attempt to go to the rescue of our missing comrades. Pilot Pat Reid and his two mechanics, Jim Hutchinson and William Hughes.

We are still without word from them since they disappeared Saturday in the Norton Bay region. There is virtually no visibility in the direction of the coast and the weather will have to turn much colder before it will be clear enough to continue our search. It may be—and it is our fervent hope that is so—that the low visibility is the only circumstance that has prevented Reid from rejoining the expedition.

Reports from the motorship Nanuk at North Cape, Siberia, tell of the worst blizzard of the season raging between North Cape and Nome. The storm extends over the vast areas east of Nome as well. The temperature here is 25 above. Pilots Clifford Swartman and H. E. Oaks are still at Fairbanks awaiting developments before joining us here.

CHAPTER 56

PAT sank in the mellow, golden light, sank in the dream. With closed eyes, conscious only of a great, enfolding sweetness; of an infinite gentle strength, as though she was half sleeping with the sun about her. Now came dew; cold, refreshing dew dropping on her face, and the voice that called through the dream: "Pat—oh little, little Pat!"

She murmuring vaguely so that it seemed a distant song "Guy? Is it Guy?"

She was drawn close. His laughing sob rang in wild tenderness against her cheek.

Neither spoke. Neither could speak. Guy knelt there with one arm about Pat, and the little boy. He knelt and looked upon them. In the flashlight his face was like a god's. To Pat, a glory about it, and in his eyes such a wonder of love, of humility and thankfulness that looking into them, she wept.

She said giddily: "Oh dear, dear Guy!"

The little boy turned his face against Pat's arm. Trying desperately to keep back sobs. "But where's my mother? I thought you said my mother's come."

Guy gave a laugh. "She sent me for you. Your mother's waiting, Bill. And we're going to her—you and us. I'm taking you out of this place right now. I've something for you here."

"Water? I want a drink. My throat feels tight."

Guy raised the flask to Billy's mouth.

The child's hand trembled eagerly: "Can I take a big drink—all I want?"

"All you want, soldier!"

It sent a pang through Guy's thought, the piteous joy of the little lad when the water was raised to his lips. He leaned down and poured brandy in Pat's mouth. He said with a gulp: "I guess you suffered, dear! Now you have to walk. I'll carry Billy. The rolling's low. You must have crept in. Can you make it? Oh, love—oh, sweet."

She met his joyous, brimming eyes. She put her hand on his arm, thrilled by the good tough feel of his sleeve. And all her weariness was gone. She could have walked from the depths of earth to its heaven.

She heard the mumble of Billy's voice: "Not fooling me, Guy? Is my mother really coming? Soon? Right now."

"In the morning, Bill. I'm taking you to her."

"Will THEY see us. They're BAD WILL THEY let us go?"

"You bet they will!"

"Yeah, Guy face, Guy—it's so hot." Pat whispered.

He flung back softly: "Only three, Pat dear." He paused and turned the light full on her: "Oh, brave—are you all right?"

She pressed against his sleeve. Then they went on, stooping because the gallery was narrow and its vault low. They came into the wider avenue, down there where the black pit ended it.

He swept his free arm with the light about her and hurried her from the forbidding spot.

"See—the pit, Guy?"

"I saw it. . . ."

His trembling arm held her fast. "Don't look at it, Pat. Don't think of it."

As they went on, he turned now and then with a queer, throaty laugh: "Are you with me, Eurydice? You won't vanish again?"

Thrilling as the young Greek and he moved in the darkness. He had the boy raised in his arms. A milder Orpheus he seemed to Pat—brought to her in these frightening days a new measure of love. She would follow always through any dark. They would never be parted again.

"See—your little mounds of earth. Pat, did you leave those mounds?"

"Yes, I—"

He caught her to him—he let her feel his tears on his cheek. He said: "I could have prayed when I saw them first."

She answered choking: "I thought of you—that you would come, Guy. And I left the marks for you."

He thought then that no suffering he might ever feel would be too great; no pain too hard to have won such trust, such holy adoring love as Pat's eyes looking in his now yielded. He blessed them with a sense of uplifting, awe, of living, sacred beauty.

"Are we out of the cave? Really

58 PATROLMEN SHIFTED IN HUB POLICE SHAKEUP

Expert Says Traffic Delays Cost Boston $350,000 Daily

MORE POLICE FOR TRAFFIC SQUADS

Second Flying Squadron Is Formed in a Shakeup of Boston Department

A larger detective force touring the city night and day in high-speed automobiles is planned by Police Commissioner Wilson in his new drive on crime in Boston.

These plans became known today following creation of a second flying squadron and the transfer of 58 patrolmen, ordered by the commissioner in an attempt to halt the epidemic of safe robberies and apartment burglaries.

While not officially announced, it is known that Commissioner Wilson is planning one of the largest detective bureaus of any city in the country.

Patrolmen Max Singer of Milk st station and John J. Tesorero of Hanover st, have been ordered to plainclothes duty with the head quarters squad

Tomorrow Patrolmen Paul Crowley, nephew of the superintendent, and William Goulston, now a member of the flying squadron, will join the detective force. Other promising men will be called in and placed on special duty, night and day.

Three or four new cars have also been ordered for the flying squadrons.

Formation of a second flying squadron and the transfer of 58 patrolmen mark a new drive on crime by Police Commissioner Wilson

The officers of the two flying squadrons will have roving commissions and will be held accountable for violent crime and for the roundup of criminals.

Practically no limit has been set on their duties, and they will be able to "step in" anywhere within the city's boundaries and take over the investigation and prevention of crime.

A shakeup in the ranks of patrolmen has been expected for some time

The commissioner's transfer will bolster the strength of the two traffic divisions considerably, for only five men have been taken from these houses and 17 will replace them. The intown divisions are also helped by getting more men in the transfers.

The flying squadron a new unit is made up of picked men as follows: Harry T. Kershaw, Milk at; John F. Pettiti, Joy at; Joseph P. Fallon, La Grange at.; Edward Galvin and George F. Smith, East Dedham st; Daniel J. McDonald, Athens st; Patrick J. Murphy, East Boston; Thomas F. Fyfel, Dudley at.; John H. Flood, Roxbury Crossing.

Dennis F. Haggerty, Dorchester; John J. Callahan, City Point; John J. Madden, Jamaica Plain; Peter DiSessa, Brighton; Gerald F. Ahern Charlestown; James J. McDevitt noted for his tremendous strength.

George F. Smith of East Dedham st. is known as "Hard-Boiled" Wet Roxbury; Joseph Kilgallon, downtown traffic, and Charles H. Berkebile of Back Bay traffic.

FOUR U.S. CUP DEFENDERS ON WAYS

N. E. Built Boat to Race Sir Thomas Lipton's Fleet British Craft

Side by side at Lawley's Neponset yard and side by side at Herreshoff's, down at Bristol, R. I., the four sloops that will contend for the honor of defending the America's cup in September, are being built.

The chips are flying—and the money. A good sized fortune is being spent in the construction of the four contenders. Another good sized fortune will be spent in their preparation for trials in August and in the boat selected to meet Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V, another and still larger fortune will be invested.

A New England built ship will defend the silver and pewter mug that the America lifted from Britain in 1851 in a race against England's best off the Isle of Wight. There will be only the four contenders for the honors and their construction was awarded to Lawley's and Herreshoff's

YANKEE KEEL LAID

The cup is worth about $2500. In its defense American yachtsmen have spent millions of dollars and Britain's yachtsmen have wagered nearly as much to get it back.

Sir Thomas Lipton will make his fifth attempt this fall. He estimates he has spent about $10,000,000 in vain efforts to carry it back across "the pond." He is getting old, and he admits this will probably be his last try.

Four syndicates, one Boston and three New York, have undertaken to spend the fortunes needed to build, man and condition the contenders. John S. Lawrence heads the Boston syndicate, Paine is the Boston designer and Yankee is the name of the J-sloop that will carry the hopes of New England yachtsmen in the trials.

All contenders come under the 76-foot rating. Down at Lawley's, the Yankee's keel is being laid. The keel weighs approximately 80 tons

From keel and keelson will rise the ribs and plates, decks and mast. The Boston boat will be bronze plated, as will two of the others. She will carry a mast approximately 165 feet tall and 7500 feet of canvas, having a pull equal to about 100 tons.

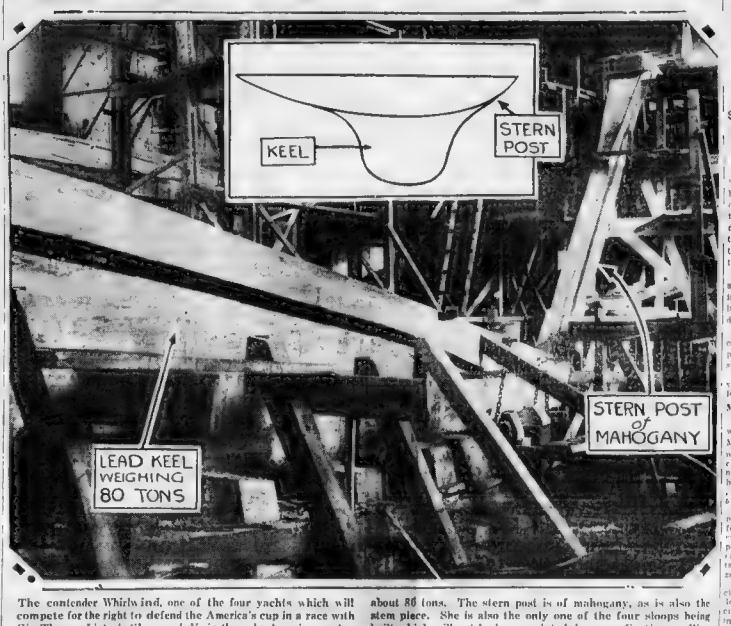
Her exact dimensions are still a closely guarded secret as are those of the others. Probably she will be Marconi-rigged.

OTHER SHIPS

Less headway has been made on the tanks than on any of the other four boats because she was designed last. Near her at Lawley's is building the Hammond-Thorne syndicate contender, Whirlwind, which, alone of the four is to be built without a centerboard. Her keel, stem piece and stern post of mahogany have been set. She is the single exception to the bronze plate rule, her specifications calling for mahogany planking over steel framework. Whirlwind is designed by Herreshoff.

Farthest along of all four is the Vanderbilt syndicate sloop, Enterprise, building at Bristol from the specifications of Burgess. Beside her at Herreshoff's lies the keel of the Westmoor, Crane-designed for the Morgan syndicate.

Lead Keeled Challenger Laid Down at Lawley's



The contender Whirlwind, one of the four yachts which will compete for the right to defend the America's cup in a race with Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V, is the only American entry built without a center board. Her keel is of lead and weighs about 80 tons. The stern post is of mahogany, as is also the stem piece. She is also the only one of the four sloops being built which will not be bronze plated, her specifications calling for mahogany planking over the steel framework.

NEW SYSTEM OF STREETS IS NEEDED

Shurtleff Avers Autos Have Broken Down Roads Built for Days of "Horse Age"

The street system of the city and the road system of the country, built for the horse age, have broken down under the avalanche of the automobile, Flavel Shurtleff, director of the Planning Foundation of America, declared today at the Municipal Issues Conference in the Twentieth Century Club.

Public authorities of state, city and nation, he said, must finance in the next ten years the greatest improvement program of any decade

Traffic delays on city streets are costing millions, Boston's being placed at $350000 a day by the speaker.

Traffic accidents are taking each year an increasing toll of human life

MUST SPEED TRAFFIC

Traffic must be made to move with more speed and more safety. Major street systems in the cities must be rebuilt at great cost, he said. Express traffic lanes with no interruption by cross traffic are heard to come and this means wide separation, bridges, viaducts and under-passes.

The passing of people in cities makes the provision of open spaces for recreation more urgent than ever, Shurtleff pointed out. City parks and playgrounds, larger recreations within easy riding distance, are essentials to healthy citizenship.

The planning expert went into city financing in some detail and declared that the problem of the city administrator of the specialist in municipal financing is to pay for improvements without pledging the credit of the city or putting a greater burden on the general taxpayer

VALUES ARE INCREASE?

He referred to the classes of bonds issued for improvements which pay for themselves and said a street widening may be such an improvement, particularly those widenings which produce valuable business frontage.

In this connection he quoted figures to show that while the Stuart st. widening cost a total of nearly $6,0000,000, the increase in values was $22,0000,000 with no increase in the tax rate.

A similar condition obtained in the Province st. widening he said, with $2,000,000 of new values created.

JUDGE IN SAME COURT 58 YEARS

Still vigorous and active, Judge Joseph R. Churchill of Dorchester court began today his 58th year on the bench, a term of service longer than that of any other judge.

He was appointed January 9, 1871, and has served in Dorchester court ever since. Also he has lived in the same house at 32 Percival st, Meeting House Hill throughout that period.

Up to the time the new Dorchester courthouse was build two years ago, Judge Churchill used to walk to and from court, but now that the court is farther he rides in his automobile.

The judge was born in Dorchester on January 29, 1845, was educated in the Dorchester public schools and at Harvard and was graduated from Harvard Law school in 1868. He has one daughter, Dr. Anna Quincy Churchill.

Notables Pay Final Honor to Winsor

Bankers and business associates of Boston and New York, public officials and townspeople, filled the First Parish Church in Weston today at funeral services for Robert Winsor, partner in the Boston investment house of Kidder, Peabody & Co.

In conformance with the often expressed wishes of the banker, the services were simple and the subsequent burial in Linwood Cemetery Weston was private.

Flowers almost entirely filled the chancel of the Unitarian Church, one of the largest pieces being sent by J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York. Roses covered the casket and two large sheaves of calla lilies were on the pulpit and the lectern.

Nephews of the late banker were ushers at the services. They were Theodore Pearson, Frederick Winsor, Jr., Paul Winsor, Jr., Robert Pearson, Joseph Allen, Winsor Gale and Fox Winsor.

STEARNS TELLS AIMS OF NEW ENGLAND MEDICAL CENTER

WOMEN PLAN DRIVE FOR $1,500,000

Rotch Says 500 Persons in 25 Cities Have Volunteered for the Campaign

The committee of 115 socially prominent women of Greater Boston formed to take part in the $1,500,000 campaign to establish the New England Medical Center, met today at a luncheon in the Statler Hotel.

Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, chairman, presided, and the speakers were Dr. A. Warren Stearns, dean of Tufts Medical School, commissioner of corrections for Massachusetts and chairman of the Tufts Alumni committee for the new medical center, and Arthur G. Rotch, chairman of the executive committee for the campaign.

In describing the aims and purposes of the medical center, Dr Stearns said it was neither a reformation nor a revolution, but rather a development.

The instruction given to medical students, he said, has changed from the apprentice method to class room teaching, and further to the study of disease prevention in the outpatient departments of hospitals. Here patients are diagnosed and given treatment while they are still on their feet.

Dr. Stearns said he believed the real refinements of medical practice will be developed in the outpatient departments, because the most difficult cases are found there. He spoke also of the value of having the floating hospital in the new Medical Center, explaining it has decided to build on land since the burning of the hospital ship.

Arthur G. Rotch outlined the campaign plan and told the committee that upwards of 500 persons already had volunteered to work, and that active local committees are being established in 25 principal New England cities.

Winter Storm Due to Hit Boston Tonight

Following several days of Junlike weather, New England faces a decided drop in temperature tonight, accompanied by rain, sleet and snow driven by fresh to strong northeast winds.

It will be a June to December jump as the local forecaster predicts a drop of from 20 to 25 degrees in temperature during the night on the wings of the storm.

In ten hours today the official temperature in Boston fell 16 degrees from a maximum of 58 at 4 a. m. to 42 at 2 p. m.

It was predicted the first effects of this cold wave, sweeping down from the Canadian northwest, will hit Boston late today. Temperatures as low as 36 to 38 below zero were reported from the Canadian northwest today.

The Hub mild lingered in the lap of Spring early today with higher temperatures than those reported from any California city. While Boston was enjoying a temperature of 55 at 8 a. m. today Los Angeles reported 44 and San Francisco 42. The maximum in Boston today was 58 at 4 a. m. The record for this date is 60 in 1889.

The official forecast for Boston and vicinity is: Rain probably turning to sleet or snow and colder tonight and Friday; fresh to strong north to east winds. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 30.

Colder weather with snow, sleet and rain is expected throughout New England.

Frigid temperatures were also reported from the western states again today. At Bismarck, N. D. and Moorehead, Minn., the mercury fell to 28 below zero, but that was warm compared to Manitoba Canada, where it was 36 below at Winnipeg and 38 below at The Pas.

At Montpelier, Vt., today the temperature dropped 20 degrees. Freezing was reached at 7 a. m. and plunger fell to 28 below zero.

The unseasonably high temperatures of the last few days in New England, with resulting melting of ice and snow, caused the north branch of the Winooski river at Montpelier, Vt., to rise six feet above normal. College hockey games at Hanover, N. H., and Burlington, Vt., were postponed and a span of a new bridge at Cornish, N. H., sank to the bottom of the Lamoille river when it became broken through the foundations.

3 DEAD IN STORM

Weather conditions prevailed in the eastern New York State. The Genesee river threatened to inundate hundreds of acres of lowlands and one bridge was between that town and Dansville.

Heavy snow covered Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, the Dakotas, Missouri, Minnesota, Kansas, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Oklahoma, Illinois, Indiana, parts of Ohio and many other sections with no relief from snow for approximately 24 hours.

Kansas City was buried beneath a 16-inch mantle and snow continued to fall. Seven inches had fallen in Chicago. Texas was gripped with an icy rain which froze as it struck the ground. Snow was predicted for tonight and colder weather.

AIR TRAFFIC HALTED.

Trains crept into Chicago stations hours late. Highways were impassable in many states.

Air mail lines refused to send pilots into the falling snow and traffic was at a standstill. The Great Lakes were again whipped into shipping havoc.

Three deaths attributable to the storm were reported from Missouri, Oklahoma and Colorado. Untold hundred heavy loss of livestock would be still.

The fate of six persons in California who have been battling the elements in the Sierras was still in question today as rescuers continued efforts to reach them.

TERCENTENARY FETE FOR ALL

John J. Walsh, acting president of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, Inc., in a statement today, said:

"One of the erroneous impressions concerning the Tercentenary is that it is a 'high-brow' project, interesting only to that indefinable group of people who may be classified under that odious name. Even if the celebration were solely commemorative of the Puritan founders, it could well be regarded as worthy of support and participation by all who have a reasonable sense of their personal obligation to the nation.

"When it is realized that the celebration is also to show our achievements of 300 years, no one can properly be indifferent to its success. Every unit of several racial strains which compose our citizenship has contributed to the glory of Massachusetts.

"Let them all come in with the story of their gifts to the common weal. Remember our State is called 'Commonwealth.' All her triumphs, possessions, and hopes are the common property of her people, without distinction of ancestry. The sole test of acceptability is pride of identification with Massachusetts."

BARGAIN DAYS AT MARKET

Marked by an after-Christmas slump, the markets at Faneuil Hall and vicinity are going through a period of light business.

Buying on the part of the general public has been reduced to a small factor. Warm weather is said by market men to have contributed in the dropping off of business, for "people seem to eat less in warm weather."

Prices are somewhat lower at present, and these January weeks are a good time for the economical housewife to make a tour of inspection at the stalls.

Figs are among the items to drop in price, from 35 cents to 20 cents for the best. Storage eggs retail for 48 cents.

A few turkeys still remain on the market, to sell at about 50 cents. Chickens and broilers are at 45 cents. Butter remains steady at 58 cents.

The effect of a short crop in maple syrup is being felt. Some excellent pure is 85 cents and quarts for one dollar are being offered.

A maple along well is the genuine buckwheat flour from western farms for 75 cents per pound and up. This is highly recommended for those who enjoy buckwheat cakes and by-products.

This week a large number of tasty imported cheeses are on the market. Some are in sandwich form, others are in very original wrappings. Russian caviar has appeared at 40 cents an ounce.

Ex-Dry Agent Jailed for Non-Support

Two weeks' additional sentence were given him for having broken probation for drunkenness, imposed last fall while MacDonald was employed as prohibition agent.

Dr. Harry C. Solomon and Dr. Charles G. Dewey said Mrs. Walker beneficiary under a $200,000 antenuptial agreement, entered the room of the patient at Hotel Brunswick. They quoted her as saying she wanted them to hear what she had to say, and that she then addressed Lufkin as follows:

Lufkin: Oh, yes, $200,000.

Yesterday Dr. Abrahams Myerson testified he examined Lufkin in October of 1928 and found him suffering with advanced arteria sclerosis and from senile dementia.

CONTESTED BY SISTER

The will is being contested by Lufkin's sister and sole heir-at-law, Miss Elizabeth Lufkin of Squantum, who charges her brother with being of unsound mind and under the influence of others.

The ante-nuptial agreement by which the nurse agree dto make no contest of the will, was d awn up by Vice-President Henry P. Tilden of the United States Trust Co., a beneficiary.

So Don't Do It? What? Don't Use Word Don't!

Don't use the word "don't."

This, in effect, is the advice of Payson Smith, commissioner of education of Massachusetts, in commenting upon the use of the contraction by President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University

President Butler is receiving hundreds of letters from people who object to his expression, "Neutrality don't involve breaking your obligations," when discussing the League of Nations over the radio.

"People who try to be correct in their grammar always avoid the use of any contractions," said the state education head.

In the specific instance, President Butler's use of the word, "don't" is very incorrect, said the commissioner.

The contraction "don't" refers to the longer expression, "do not," the commissioner explained. It is not a contraction of "does not" which group of words is represented in contracted form by "doesn't"

The word "neutrality" is singular and therefore the use of the plural verb "do not" in contracted form of "don't" is quite wrong, even for such a cultured scholar as the Columbia head

"No," added Commissioner Smith "I would not say that this 'don't' is always incorrect. It is no sin, but I do know that most people who are purists in grammar always avoid this and all other contractions."

Moral Don't use the word "don't."

TEACHERS' FUND PLAN INDORSED

A recommendation made by Commissioner of Education Payson Smith, that the State Treasurer be empowered to invest funds of the Teachers' Retirement System in securities which are legal investments for savings banks and to deposit the funds in savings banks was endorsed by several speakers today at a hearing before the legislative committee on pensions

Harris Smiley, member of the retirement board, and Secretary Clayton L. Lent pointed out to the committee that the State Treasurer now is limited in the investment of these funds to securities that are legal for sinking funds, consisting of high standard state, municipal and United States bonds

Others who favored wider investments were Representative William F. Thomas of Fall River and John F Scully, superintendent of the Brockton schools. Superintendent Scully represented the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation

NURSE OF READING IN POOR HEALTH

Tells of the Relief Just Two Bottles of Bon-Tone Brought

In a recent statement to Mr C D Ryan, the Bon-Tone man at Epstein's Drug Store, Scollay Square, Boston, Mass., Mrs. R. B. Grant of 62 Bancroft Avenue, Reading, Mass., who is a nurse and a member of the Woman's Club of Reading, said

MR. C. D. RYAN
Bon-Tone Representative

"Two years ago I had an operation for gall bladder trouble, and since that time I had been in poor health. I was always bothered more or less with stomach trouble, and after eating I would feel miserable, and was always troubled with gas. I think my liver was out of sorts; and I always had a very tired, sluggish feeling, and not much ambition to work, or to do anything else, for that matter. In fact, I think I was getting into a run-down condition. My bowels were also very inactive, and seldom did I have a natural operation

"I saw Bon-Tone so extensively advertised that I thought it would do no harm anyway to try a couple of bottles. I did so, and I am pleased to say that on those two bottles I was greatly surprised to receive very good results. I certainly feel very much better, and I seem to have more life and ambition than formerly. The gas is much better, and I eat and sleep much better. I am now in Epstein's Drug Store buying two more bottles of Bon-Tone, and if I receive as good results on these two as on the first two, I should be in very good condition. I am glad to recommend Bon-Tone"

Those who want to get well and enjoy health and happiness, just go and see the Bon-Tone man, who is meeting the public at Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square, only, Boston. Bon-Tone is also for sale in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, Perkins Square, and in the Cole Drug Co., 636 Massachusetts Ave., Central Square, Cambridge.

READ STORY OF NEW RUSSIA IN THE AMERICAN

Frazier Hunt, Noted Writer, to Describe Soviet Republic of Today

A new story of Soviet Russia of today a story new and radically different from anything which heretofore has appeared in print about Russia, has just been written exclusively for the Boston Evening American and other clients of International News Services by Frazier Hunt, noted news paperman, war correspondent and magazine writer

Mr. Hunt, who is editorial representative for Europe and staff writer for the Cosmopolitan Magazine has just returned from a lengthy tour of Russia. He has long had a speaking acquaintance with and a deep personal interest in Russia and on this tour he utilized his ably trained faculties for observation in comparing conditions in Russia as he found them on this tour with conditions which existed two, four and ten years ago

By special arrangement with Cosmopolitan Magazine, International News Service is able to furnish to the Boston Evening American and other client newspapers this series of articles, numbering six in all, dealing in detail with the "new revolution in Russia."

"Russia has learned that she cannot conquer the world by bayonets. Now she seeks to conquer it and to reform it to conform to Soviet ideas, by new ideas, says Mr. Hunt.

"'Learn from your enemies,' that is what Lenin preached—and that is the story of Russia."

"Russia, having cast out her old gods, has a new god. It is the machine god, and the American Tractor is its prophet," Mr. Hunt declares

"Catch up with and then pass America' is the catchword from the Gulf of Finland eastward to the Urals, and beyond into the illimitable stretches of Siberia.

How and why the Soviets expect to achieve this goal is told in this series of articles, the first of which will appear in the American on Monday. The others will follow day by day.

Want Marrying Power

A bill which would allow commissioned officers of the Salvation Army to perform marriage ceremonies in this State was filed with the clerk of the House by Representative Joseph Earl Perry of Belmont on petition of Joseph A Ianson, executive officer of the Salvation Army in Massachusetts.

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Bruins in Battle With Pirates at Garden Tonight

HUB SEXTET AFTER 14TH WIN IN ROW

LINEUP AT GARDEN

Barry, c	c,	Mike
Oliver, rw	lw,	Lowrey
Hitchman, ld	rd,	Smith
Shore, rd	ld,	Fraser

Bruins spare—Gainor, Weiland, Clapper, Owen, Carson, MacKay, Hutton.

Pittsburgh spares—Briden, Raeburn, Jarvis, Manners, McKinnon, Spring.

Teams to play three 20-minute periods—Referee to be announced at game time—Face off at 8:30.

TONIGHT the world champion Boston Bruins, reaching for new hockey records, endeavor to make it 14 straight victories when they meet the Pittsburgh Pirates in a National Hockey League game at the Garden.

The Bruins polished off the Rangers on Tuesday night 3-0 while the Pirates looked on, and after seeing Rangers attempt to beat the Bruins by defensive hockey, Manager Frank Fredrickson of the Pirates declared that the New York strategy was all wrong and that his team would attempt to halt the Bruins by playing a wide open, pressing offensive game from first to final whistle.

Freddy believes that a team that plays defensive hockey against the Bruins is playing into Manager Rees' hands.

The Pirates practiced at the Garden and seemed to be in rare fettle for a hard game tonight. The team is quite steamed up about the chance for glory that confronts it because the first team that stops the Bruins is going to have something to crow about. The Pirates will go after the Bruins from the first whistle.

FAST LINE

Manager Fredrickson means to start Lowery, Milks and Darragh in his first line, and Manager Rees will counter with Barry, Galbraith and Oliver, leaving the trio of Dutch Gainor, Conny Weiland and Dit Clapper free to operate against the Pittsburgh second set of forwards.

It was feared after the Rangers' game that Dutch Gainor might be lost to the Bruins for a few games because of a bump received in Montreal and aggravated in the Rangers game. However, his injury has responded to treatment and he will be back on the ice.

The third line will do the relief duty for the Bruins, but Bill Carson, Mickey MacKay and George Owen and Bill Hutton will have more than relief line designation if they continue to play as they have of late.

CARSON IMPROVES

Bill Carson was great again in the Rangers and he is just beginning to get the breaks which ever-sooner needs. He got the goal which put the Bruins in the lead in the Rangers game and was driving to score on a half dozen other occasions. Mickey MacKay looks great again, and George Owen was dangerous whenever he was on the ice Thursday.

The Bruins meet to go out and win their 14th straight game and make it 15 straight when they play Americans in New York on Sunday night. They are taking the game as seriously as they did the Rangers game, and the entire team will be ready to play high pressure hockey.

The game will offer thousands of hockey fans an opportunity to see the Bruins, inasmuch as the game being a home game for Pittsburgh is not sold out on the season ticket plan.

Several thousand fans from outside Boston will be in attendance at the game and seeing the Bruins for the first time this season.

The Garden box office will be open from 9 a. m. today and reservations will be accepted by telephone and tickets held until 7:30 p. m.

Interest High in Title Ring Wars

More interest is being manifested in the approaching State amateur boxing titles than in any simon pure tournament held in this city in many months. This fixture is carded at the Boston Arena, Monday night, January 20 with the eight championship classes open to all registered amateur boxers of the state.

With bouts in all eight championship classes including 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160, 175 and heavyweight divisions, this tourney will bring out the best youthful boxers in the district and no doubt the winners will be ultimately selected for the big amateur boxing fixtures to come later in the season.

Entries for the tournament close January 15 with Tom Kanaly at the B. A. A., Exeter st.

FINDLEY SAYS

THE commission has granted Shires and Spohrer permission to fight; but can they?—Babe Ruth wants a bigger salary than the Presidents; well, he hits more homers—looks like they'll have to call in the Coast Guard to stop the Bruins.

The Brooklyn Dodgers have no manager as yet; which makes it even as they have no ball club —Braves will take less than 20 ball players south; no news in that—if you know what we mean—the baseball schedule makers will announce their list of open dates very shortly—the Boston Garden is seriously considering the building of an open air fight palace down Revere way—wrestling goes to the legal mat today to prove its rectitude—Horton Smith is making as much money in golf tournaments as a heavyweight contender collects Ruth bowls three hours a day, but it is the right sort of bowling

T. WILSON, racing man, R. left a $10,000,000 estate. But he didn't make it on parlays.

OL' DOC KENDALL has been elected captain of the Boston Bicycle Club for the 46th time, which is some kind of a record—but the 75-year-old Doc says he will not get any kick until they put him out there for the 50th captaincy—the reserves were almost called out the night the gang celebrated Doc's silver jubilee as leader—they'll need the militia when the half-century mark is reached —the Doc is the patron saint of exercise; and fun—he played 18 holes of golf yesterday, surrounded by two jovial banquets when better ways of living are discovered, Doc will discover them—he has invented more cocktails than Edison has electric bulbs—and he admits that he's just starting to go

JACK SHARKEY is causing more excitement in Miami than the last hurricane. This night give the writer cracks a chance to go to work on the big wind stuff.

SOME real markdowns—Eddie Mack says that the revivified Argonne club will run every week—Jack Sharkey will get his $100,000 on percentage in the Scott battle—Francis Oulmet (Phil Finlay and Fred Wright star golfers, never miss a hockey game—Mrs. G. Rooney, who has a daughter in high school, still looks young enough to have birthday parties—Ben Levinsky of New England will have at least three girl champions in the next Olympics—And Ben will take a team over to the women a international championships in Prague, Czecho-Slovakia this summer—The amphibians in the Garden cost more than 15 grand in Canadian arenas fans throwing papers on the ice have their season ticket privilege revoked; a good idea. Al Marsters will go to Harvard Law next year; he's getting plenty of oratorical practice

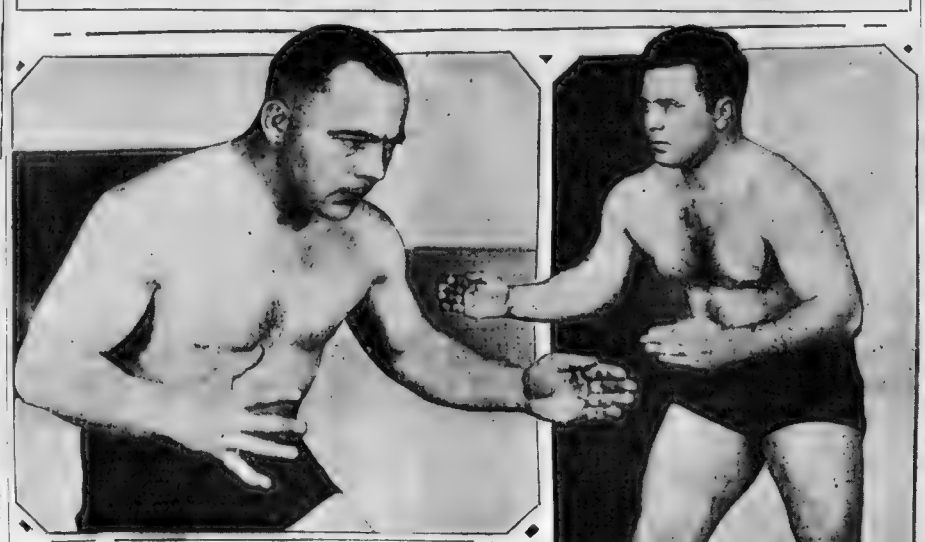
ART SHIRES has been exonerated, so now Congress can turn its attention to prohibition without further delay. Art believes exoneration means permission to do more talking.

DID you know that Al Spohrer was surprised because none of the papers took pictures of him doing road work—that Al blames his bald head on shower baths—that wrestling fans do more telephoning than any other kind—and hoss players run a close second—that the Golden Glove tournament acted a neat profit of seven thou—that Ben Ames Williams, who makes plenty now, finished a typewriter in just 12 hours a day for several years before he began to click—and that Jim Healy orders that he uses a dictaphone and a couple of secretaries—that Dan Carroll has more fighters than any other mgr—that Otto von Porat has royal blood in his veins, the von reflecting some sort of title.

IF the one game a year plan ever were put through, tickets for a Yale-Harvard war would be put at $25 and bring in the regular seasonal profits.

IT seems to us that times are not as hard as they're cracked up to be. Sport fans seem to have plenty. The Golden Glove skirmishes drew $9000 Monday. There was a $20,000 house at the Garden for Tuesday's hockey game tonight will draw more than $10,000 and there'll be twice that at the Arena where Sonnenberg performs. And tomorrow p. m. will add better than $30,000 to the total, when Schaaf and Friedman, plus Shires and Spohrer, collide where the trains pull out. There's $80,000 worth of admissions in a fairly quiet week. Which doesn't exactly spell poverty. No wonder promoters spring up like mushrooms.

CAN MAT CHAMP STOP WILD RUSH OF CAMBRIDGE BOY?



Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight mat champion, above on left, defends his title tonight at the Boston Arena against Bob McCoy, Cambridge wrestler. Both men were formerly grid stars, Sonny at Dartmouth and McCoy at Holy Cross. Sonny's best bet is his flying tackle. It may not work against such an experienced football player as McCoy.

Boston Hockey Club Plays Terrier Six

BOSTON UNIVERSITY'S hockey team will not be idle this week, as was at first thought, on account of the cancellation of the game with Dartmouth, but the Terriers will meet the newly formed Boston Hockey Club at the Arena tomorrow night in the supporting game of a double bill featuring University Club and the Beavers of St. John, N. B

This game is a life saver for the B. U. six because the boys have been so long without a game that interest was beginning to lag and the ceiling off the Dartmouth game was a sad blow, which would have set the local sextet back considerably were it not for the scheduling of Friday night's game

The Terriers must be at their best against the clubmen in order to chalk up a victory. Sid Silberberg, who starred in goal for B. U. for four seasons, will be in the net for the Hockey club and is bound to prove a stumbling block for his old teammates

GIDDENS READY

Bobby Giddens, captain-elect of the Harvard six, but ineligible this winter, will probably be seen in the club lineup along with many other former college stars

Coach Wayland Vaughan will get his first opportunity Friday of seeing his new forward line in action and, if it weathers the storm in the next game, the Terrier mentor can rest assured that the new men will stand up against the remainder of the opponents on the schedule

Shorty Barron and Hugo Nelson, who have replaced Ben Cutler and Holmes Whitmore at center and right wing, respectively, have been working out with the first team for the past week, and look like the goods, but it will not be until they have stood up against actual competition that Vaughan can decide whether or not they work better than the former first stringers

DEFENSE STRONG

The defense will remain the same, with Buck Dorgbolt and Bob Elliot at the points and Bert Grodberg in goal

The Boston Hockey Club, which was organized by Bill Flynn, has been practicing for nearly a month under Herb Rheaume and Eddie Burke of the Boston Tigers, and those interested in its organization expect that the team will do well

The players all are former New England college and school performers. Pete Stanford, center last year for Boston College and formerly an outstanding player on championship Melrose high teams will start at center

Dick Thayer of Bowdoin and Red Mahoney, former schoolboy star, will be on the wings, with Bill Berkeley, Tech captain of a few years ago, and either Art Morrissey of Boston College or Ty Anderson of Clark School on defense

Sid Silberberg, captain and goaltender of last year's strong Boston University team, will be in goal

Other members of the team are Ed Frazer of Stoneham former New Hampshire goaler, Etta Kerr, formerly of Rindge and Dean; Jim Dyson of Cambridge, Gordon Smith of Middlesex School, Loring Cushman of Andover, Bobby Nelson, formerly of B. A. A. and University Club, and Snooks Kelly, former B. C. center.

Owner of Pelicans Commits Suicide

New Orleans, Jan. 9 (AP)—Alexander Julius Heinemann, who became the owner of the baseball club which first employed him as a peanut vendor, shot himself to death last night in his office at the New Orleans baseball park

A groundskeeper, who found the body, said Heineman had rehearsed the shooting while sitting at his desk several days ago. The coroner returned a verdict of suicide. Friends said Heineman recently had lost $350,000 in stocks, but expressed the belief that ill health had prompted his act.

Heinemann, a native of New Orleans and a bachelor, devoted his life to baseball, developing many big league stars while outlining the New Orleans team into a pennant contender in the Southern Association. Among his graduates were Joe Jackson, Dazzy Vance, Hank Deberry, Jim Bagby, Buddy Myer, Bob Smith and Joe Sewell.

English High Leads Trade in Track Meet

After the shotput and standing broad jumps were completed in the dual meet between English high and Trade at English, the Blue and Blue were leading, 99 points to 16.

The high jumps will be held at Trade today and the running events will be held at the East Armory tomorrow.

Dorchester Wins School Track Meet

After trailing in the running events which were staged Monday, Dorchester went through for field events and finals of the triangular meet with Memorial high of Roxbury and Jamaica Plain high to win the meet. The final count was Dorchester 97, Memorial 78 and Jamaica Plain 54.

NO H.-Y. RING GO THIS YEAR

Rumors that Harvard and Yale may meet in the ring this year were denied in official circles at Harvard today.

While it is true that Harvard is planning to have a boxing team ready for intercollegiate competition next year, no effort has been made to select any possible members of such a team nor will any program be made in this direction for at least a year.

On the heels of the rumor of a ring meeting between the ancient rivals comes an authentic announcement by William T. Bingham with regard to plans for a boxing team at Harvard.

WANT BOXING

The committee on the regulation of athletic sports at its last meeting listened to petitions from boxers at Harvard to recognize the sport.

At the meeting no direct action was taken by the committee, but the petition was referred to the student council for its opinion. This student council was the body which defeated the measure two years ago. At that time no explanation was offered for the refusal of the undergraduates to promote boxing as an intercollegiate sport. They simply turned the measure down by a unanimous vote.

This time, however, it is expected that the Student Council will vote in favor of a Harvard team of mitt wielders. The sport is receiving enthusiastic support among the students.

TEAM FAVORED

The Harvard Crimson, the daily newspaper at Cambridge is also sponsoring the boxing team idea in its columns. In view of an much favorable publicity, the Student Council members of the Athletic Committee will hardly defeat the plan a second time.

With a brand new million dollar gym to house the boxing room and its audiences and with specially designed rooms and equipment for boxing, the Crimson ought to have no difficulty in building up a strong team.

Coach Larry Conley, at present conducting a class of over 300 glove tossers, will probably be selected to coach the team.

Mission High Five Downs Cathedral

Mission high school of Roxbury defeated Cathedral high school of the South End, 12 to 10, at the St. Helena school gymnasium, South End, in the Greater Boston Catholic High School Basketball League game, the opening league game for both teams.

Amateur Matmen in Cambridge Matches

IN the three previous meets held under the auspices of the N. E. A. A. U. at Newton, Brockton and Boston so far this year, 75 amateur wrestlers have taken part.

The wrestling has been of high calibre and has been handled well by the officials. Of the men who have taken part a number have come to the top and will be seen in action at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. on Saturday.

The men will weigh in at 6 o'clock and will wrestle at 7 o'clock. Two mats will be used and if necessary three, in order that the large number of entries may be handled in good time.

OPPONENT IN ACTION

The meets have brought out in the 118-pound class, N. E. Nopponent, who now holds the New England championship, a man who has been to the Nationals several times and also was sent to the Olympic tryouts at Los Angeles.

The other men in this class who show promise are Robert Oxford, M. I. T.; C. Rockstrom, Boston Y. M. C. A.; and Joseph Santalli, Newton Y. M. C. A.

In the 126-pound class M. DeMayo, Providence Y. M. C. A.; Louis Gamel, Boston Y. M. C. A.; G. Bazarian, Newton Y. M. C. A.; and L. P. Reno of the Worcester Boys' Club have shown much promise

The 133-pound class brings out the New England champion, J. Rapoport. The other men in this class who also are showing promise are L. B. Smith, Boston Y. M. C. A.; A. Perkins, M. I. T.; R. MacDonald, Cambridge Y. M. C. A.; and John Noden, unattached.

CHAMP WRESTLES

The 147-lb. class finds L. Stradwick, Boston Y. M. C. U., New England champion; H. Vachon, Newton Y. M. C. A., who holds the Y. M. C. A. two-state championship; H. B. Ferris, Boston Y. M. C. U., and V. Vizbara of the Boston Y. M. C. A.

The 160-lb. class has J. Arsenault, Newton Y. M. C. A.; M. DeMadeiros and A. Spirano. There better men could not be found in this class, as they have all held championships either in the Y or in New England

The 175-lb. class finds Charles Manoli, New England champion, from the Boston Y. M. C. U. Two other men who have come to the top this year are A. Sirois, M. I. T., and C. Sawitsky of the Boston Y. M. C. A.

In the heavyweight class, C. Wars of the Boston Y. M. C. A., and F. Eudent, Cambridge Y. M. C. A. stand out.

It is expected at the meet next Saturday night that there will be an entry list of at least 80, which means that there will be 40 bouts of wrestling. The meeting is open to all registered amateur wrestlers from colleges, schools, clubs or unattached.

Any man who is not registered in the A. A. U. may do so by applying to J. Frank Facey, 36 Prospect st., Cambridge.

M'COY OUT TO WREST TITLE FROM GUS

BOB McCOY of Cambridge, best local wrestling product developed in a long time, is ready for his finish match with Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg tonight at the Arena.

Sonnenberg, the most colorful figure in the history of the sport, defends his title and his $10,000 diamond belt against the charge of the agressive, hard-working, 22-year-old Cambridge boy.

The bout will show, once more, that Boston is distinctly a "Sonnenberg town," for a crowd that will pack the Arena to capacity will watch the bulky, swarthy Sonnenberg in his battle of the mat with McCoy.

According to available statistics, Sonnenberg wrestled the amazing total of 115 times last year. He was the busiest athlete in the world, amateur or professional, and he is credited with having made more money than Jack Sharkey and Babe Ruth combined

SONNY FAVORED

His experience, gained in so many matches in all parts of the country, entitle him to an edge over McCoy, who has swept through 83 matches without a defeat, and he will rule a slight favorite to defend his title successfully.

McCoy has tended strictly to his knitting at Toland's Gymnasium, where he finished his training. Unlike most wrestlers, he refuses to tramp up and down the country on long barnstorming tours, and he believes that his methodical living, his daily roadwork, and his daily training sessions at the gymnasium will lead him to the heavyweight championship of the world.

The popular Cambridge youngster will weight 212 pounds tonight, which will give him an advantage of five or six pounds on the champion. Without being overconfident, McCoy believes that he can defeat Sonnenberg.

McCOY CONFIDENT

"I know that I can stop his flying tackle" he said.

"On a fast mat wrestling, I think that I'm better than Sonnenberg. I'm in great condition, and am ready to give him a battle."

There is a collegiate note to the proceedings tonight, for McCoy starred for Holy Cross on the gridiron and diamond and Sonnenberg was one of the greatest tackles that Dartmouth ever had. They are both well known throughout New England, and every state in the New England States will be represented at the ringside.

The advance sale has surprised Paul Bowser, the promoter of the match The bout will draw the largest crowd that has witnessed a wrestling match since Sonnenberg defended his title successfully against Stranger Lewis at Fenway Park last July.

It was announced that the ice is to be removed from the surface of the Arena tonight.

George Kotsonaros, Greek champion and a well known figure in the wrestling picture world, will attempt to continue his long winning streak at the expense of Joe Sargasian, Italian star, in the semi-final match

In the preliminary bouts, Harry Abramson, Springfield wildman, will be paired with Count Zarvnoff of Russia; Ed George, University of Michigan sensation, with John Podubbny of Russia, and Jack Sherby, champion of Ohio, with Bob Wilkie of Buffalo.

Pneumatic Boxing Gloves Demonstrated

In order that officials of the Y. M. C. A. might learn something about the pneumatic boxing gloves that have been adopted by the Burroughs Newsboys Foundation, a demonstration of the gloves was given in the auditorium of the Foundation, where newsboys participated in the boxing.

F. A. Watson, director of health and recreation of the Boston Y, who attended the demonstration with his young son, was much impressed with the pneumatic glove.

Tufts Five in First Game With Trinity

The Jumbo hoopmen hold their last practice this afternoon before leaving tomorrow morning for Hartford where they meet Trinity in the season's opener. They will meet the Connecticut Aggie five at Storrs on Saturday evening.

Lew Manley will take two complete teams with Buttera at center, Cochran and Horton forwards and Fine and Warren at the guard positions on the probable starting five.

Others who are sure to see action are Beatty, Haber, Lupien, Robison and Miller.

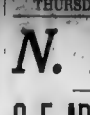
N. H. L. Head Failed to Protect Interests of Boston

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

C. F. ADAMS IN OPPOSITION TO CALDER

By BILL GRIMES

AFTER the controversy concerning the Western Hockey League players had been settled, C. F. Adams of the Bruins was bitter in his criticism of President Frank Calder.



Bill Grimes

Adams contended that in his position as president of the National Hockey League it was Calder's duty to protect the Boston interests against the looting of players by the board of governors. If Calder had made even a feeble attempt to block the action of the governors instead of allowing a vote to be passed which called for the distribution of players, bought and paid for by Adams, among clubs not in the deal without a protest, he would have avoided trouble with the owner of the Bruins.

Not only was the fracas over the Western players the first time Calder's power had ever been seriously hurt, but it was also the first time the chief executive of the N H L had been checkmated. Therefore, it was very evident that a battle was on. Calder, naturally, did not take kindly to the defeat by Adams, while the Boston promoter was up in arms over the stand that Calder had taken.

Then came the George Owen case.

Connie Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs had seen Owen in action for Harvard, while he was with Toronto Varsity and when he took over the management of the Leafs, he made overtures to the Crimson star, but to no avail. Owen had no intention of desire to play pro hockey.

FINALLY, George Owen thought that if there was as much money in the professional game, as he had been led to believe there was, he would take a fling at it. Owen got in touch with Smythe and asked some questions pertaining to bonuses and the salaries paid hockey players, never talking business. Owen was overheated in any way that he desired to play with Toronto.

He went to Smythe as a friend and not with any intention of seeking a position with the Canadian promoter. Owen was and still is for that matter, in the bond business and under no consideration would he give up his business career for hockey.

After Owen had consulted Smythe, the Toronto manager is alleged to have wired Calder to place the Harvard player's name on the Leafs reserve list but to treat the matter confidentially.

The Bruins' management was tipped off that Owen might be induced to play pro hockey for Boston about a year ago and after a short conference Weston Adams, acting for his father, came to terms with the Harvard man. He was agreed that along with a salary the Bruins would pay Owen $10,000 for signing a contract.

THE Owen deal was put through while Toronto was in town, and immediately Smythe received word that Owen had signed a Bruin contract he got into communication with Press Calder and demanded that the star be called off as Owen was on his reserve list.

According to the constitution of the National Hockey League, all clubs must be notified in writing when a player has been placed on the reserve list of any club. As the Owen notices had not been sent out by the N. H. L., the Bruins acted in good faith when they went after Owen and signed him.

President Calder set up the claim that it was a grave error in his office that was responsible for the announcement that Owen was on the Toronto list not being sent to the other clubs, and that the Harvard man belonged to the Leafs.

The news that George Owen had signed with the Bruins was released for the afternoon papers and immediately a heavy demand for tickets started and the Garden was now completely sold out.

Calder's decision necessitated quick action on the part of the Bruins, regardless of their contentions that they were well within their rights in signing Owen. Because of the Calder verdict, Toronto held the whip hand and lost no time in laying it on. Calder had informed Smythe that unless the Bruins straightened matters out with that Owen could not go on the ice that night.

C. F. ADAMS had pulled for Bermuda that morning, so Manager Art Ross went into conference with Smythe with the cards well stacked against him.

As a result of the Ross-Smythe meeting, Eric Pettinger, a very promising wing man, was sent to Toronto and the Bruins were also forced to waive their rights on Hugh Plaxton, formerly of the Toronto varsity, and one of the rent sought after players in the amateur ranks of Canada.

The Bruins have attempted to reopen the Owen case, so as to force Toronto to return Pettinger and have Plaxton replaced on their reserve list, but to no avail.

Of course, the Owen affair opened wider the breach between Adams and Calder and then, when the league president refused to take any action against Babe Siebert for his assault upon Eddie Shore they parted company entirely. They are now positively hostile and promises to be a battle to a finish.

With the minor leagues, which he is always had Adams as a sponsor for their cause and a goodly portion of the board of governors affiliated with the Boston Interests, the outcome of the Adams-Calder fight points strongly to an Adams victory.

Billy Petrolle Returns to Ring

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—Billy Petrolle has retired from retirement. The Fargo, N. D., fighter, who decided to hang up his gloves after King Tut decisively defeated him in Detroit four months ago, will again be ready for ring activity within two weeks, Jack Hurley, his manager, was advised today.

Tigers in Tilt With Eagles on Saturday

BOSTON TIGERS returned from Philadelphia this morning after their game with the Arrows last night. The team rested the balance of the day, but will practice briefly tomorrow morning in preparation for the game with New Haven Eagles in Boston Garden Saturday night.

By special dispensation of President James Dooley of the Canadian-American League, Jakie Forbes, sensational New Haven center, was permitted to play for the New York Americans against Toronto Tuesday night.

The arrangement was for one game only and Jakie will be in the New Haven nets against the Tigers Saturday.

Up to two weeks ago the Eagles had the Indian sign on the Tigers, but the Bengals fractured the jinx first by tying the New Haven entry in Boston Garden, then by winning in New Haven.

In each of these games they gave Jakie Forbes a hard time and are out to give him another Saturday.

Tigers have been playing strong aggressive hockey in their recent games and Manager Eddie Powers expects the team to go well from now until the end of the season

HUSKIES LOSE TRACK STAR

Russell Jellison, Northeastern's star sophomore distance runner from Everett, has run his last race for the Huskies. At the Boston Y M C A handicap meet Saturday night he is entered unattached in the mile and two-mile events.

Jellison has withdrawn from college and plans to work a while with the possibility of starting a new line of studies next fall. Coach Edward Parsons, who developed Jellison into a star in one season, originally entered the Everett youth to represent the Red and Black this week-end.

At Everett high Jellison never ran a race. He entered Northeast on last matriculating, and became interested in track

A. A. U. to Assume Control of Hockey

New York Jan 9 (AP)—The Amateur Athletic Union may take a hand in the attempt to prevent American hockey players from competing in the next Olympic winter sports at Lake Placid, N. Y., in 1932. The A A U will take over the reins of amateur hockey in the United States as a temporary measure until the arrangement can be made permanent at the union's next meeting.

The proposal was made by the United States Hockey Association because of the inability of the various factions in the hockey governing board to agree on a program for developing a team. The United States was not represented in the 1928 Olympic hockey competition for similar reasons.

Sporting News Picked Fast Nine

The All Star baseball team picked by The Sporting News for 1929, had a batting average of .327. Outside the pitchers the only man hitting under .300 is Jackson, shortstop, who hit .294 last season.

GRADUATE HEAD MAY BE NAMED AT B.C. TONIGHT

Announcement of Boston College's new graduate manager is expected to be made when the football classes of B C gather for their annual banquet at the Heights this evening at 6:30.

At a meeting of the graduate board, held last Tuesday, the new man to succeed Frank Reynolds was selected but no intimation of the choice trickled out of the closed doors.

From what can be gathered here and there among B C officials it seems a certainty that Edward (Duck) Darling of the class of 1925 will assume the duties vacated by Reynolds.

DARLING CAPABLE

Darling has the ability, knowledge, personality and appearance to make a huge success of the job and he has all of these qualities for this position has been a very taxing one.

The annual banquet has been taken in the past as a fitting opportunity for the dissemination of news by B. C. officials and they may have some interesting announcements this p m.

Joe McKenney has been working with Legion authorities in an attempt to bring one of the nation's most prominent grid outfits to oppose the Eagles in Boston early in October.

It has been learned that Iowa, barred from the Big Ten records, was forced to turn down an offer to visit the Hub next season Iowa which hadn't its regular schedule made up because of its trouble with the Big Ten, had signed up to meet another college and couldn't break the contract although a contest with Boston College was more desirable.

SEEKS BIG GAME

McKenney has been dickering with Legion officials since the Iowa clash was missed out on and may have something completed now. The Eagles are now trying to arrange to bring one of the four best teams in the South to Boston.

Tonight's affair will be a direct departure from precedent concerning these affairs. Only the varsity and freshman football squads coaches, managers, trainers, cheerleaders and other officials along with newspaper men, will be present.

The Boston College high school team, State champions, who went undefeated and were only scored on once, have been invited along with their coach, Arthur Belanger, to be guests of the Boston College in 1925.

The alumni has sponsored the Boston College football banquets in former years and they were open to B. C. students and their friends. This novel method has aroused some comment among the undergraduates and there is objective than to make it a better time for the football heroes for whom the banquet is held.

No speakers have been arranged Bill Ormsby who has established himself as a comedian of the first water, will be called upon to act as toastmaster. The B. C. end coach, who turned out a pair of All-Americans in Dixon and Murphy, is very popular.

Gold footballs, with jeweled "B" and the player's name the season and the score of the Holy Cross game inscribed, will be awarded to 33 of the varsity squad who made their letters by faring Holy Cross James Regan and Paul Mahoney, star backs, will be guests of honor tonight.

The B. C. school band will play.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Golfers who have reached the point where normal golfing skill can be taken for granted during a just 10 years will find that some step ultimately should be taken to arrest this development where, but what then? Failing that, the only golf we shall get to be speedy, powerful and efficient, the official step regarding it would be taken. While the present ball drives great distances, the average player perhaps failed to notice that the farther the ball drives the more erratic it is. Increased resiliency, the harder it became to pitch it and control it in the short game, led to the situation developed where the average golfer was paying a heavy penalty for every shot he ventured on the tee shots. This additional distance on long shots was not, in the final balance, a compensating for the loss of strokes around the green. With the ball becoming more and more resilient, the game gradually was being destroyed, and devised at terrific cost since course designers everywhere were being engaged to rebuild, remodel and reconstruct, in some cases, time golf layouts as they might meet the requirements of the heavier, faster ball.

MR. BOSTON

by JACK CONWAY

"HEAVYWEIGHT boxers will take to take a back seat while Gus Sonnenberg and Bibber McCoy settle their little affair on the mat at the Boston Arena tonight at a show to be staged under the direction of Paul Bowser," said Mr. Boston today. "It is one of those natural, which is quite a novelty in the wrestling game. It will be a finished mixture, between two former New Yorkers, and college football heroes remembering, did he stuff at Dartmouth while McCoy starred at Holy Cross.

"Sonnenberg has been on the go in the mat game since he wrested the title from Strangler Lewis at the Boston Garden a year ago. McCoy has blazed his way to the front during the past six months. He has the flash and sparkle that appeal to the crowd. His adversary, and they are legion, contend there will be a new champion after tonight's quarrel

"JOHNNY BUCKLEY is back in town after signing Jack Sharkey to battle Phil Scott at Miami on February 27. Sharkey is aleady in Florida and Buckley will leave for Miami the latter part of this month.

"The meeting between Sharkey the American champion and Scott the British titleholder, will be the most talked of international ring match since Dempsey and Tunney collided in New York. The winner has agreed to take a Max Schmeling in a contest for the Madison Square Garden Corporation ex pressed himself in the highest terms in regard to Alex Morgan, new matchmaker of the Boston Garden

"Cal Bevis and McLean and Eddie Mack turned in the real goods and Cal Bevis was the star of all-day business imposed me greatly. I understand that Alex has one of the finest boxing backgrounds of any man in the country"

"PAULINO and Otto Von Porat are battling in one of those meaningless heavyweight bouts at the New York Garden tomorrow night. The winner will not receive any consideration in the bouts to be staged this year for the heavyweight title.

"If Paulino comes through with a victory, he will probably be placed on the Sharkey-Scott card at Miami. He would be required upon to risk a Spanish boy on fans from Cuba and Tampa. There is a huge Spanish settlement at Tampa which was brought about by the cigar industry in that city

"FRANK MENKE, Jack Dempsey's ghost writer, told me in New York that the former champion made $140,000 last year out of his various stage appearances and promotions. Menke says Dempsey will never fight again. Asked in regard to a recent statement Dempsey gave to the press in which he declared he would like to fight Sharkey, Menke said I asked Jack about that yarn and he told me he was just nothing, are to get a few extra press notices'

"MENKE is authority for the statement that Dempsey stepped out of the boxing game with $1,500,000. The former champion has a large amount of his money in a trust fund, declared Menke. He suffered very little financial injury in the recent stock market crash as most of his money is invested in bonds which pay from 5 to 6 per cent.

Menke's statement puts at rest the report that Dempsey was planning to return to the ring to recoup recent losses

"JACK BALL, Dempsey's theatrical booking agent told me that Jack is receiving an average of $8000 a week for appearances on the footlights and for refereeing boxing contests. The old Tiger still has plenty of crowd appeal."

Notre Dame Elects Conley Grid Captain

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 9 (AP)—Tom Conley of Philadelphia, end on the undefeated untied 1929 Notre Dame eleven has been chosen as captain of the 1930 team.

Coach Knute Rockne, stricken three months ago with a leg infection, attended the Monogram banquet last night. He walked into the room unassisted, amid the cheering of 240 banqueters. He sat in a wheel chair, however, during the festivities.

SHIRES AND SPOHRER WAR TOMORROW

THOUSANDS of Hub baseball and boxing fans will greet Arthur "The Great" Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman, when he arrives at the South Station tomorrow for his home debut in this city. He clashes with Al Spohrer, Braves catcher, in one of the feature events at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

With the stage all set for the settlement of this raging baseball feud by the issuance of boxing licenses for each principal by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, the Hub only awaits the arrival of the broadcasting Pittsburker, as Spohrer has been trailing here for the past week.

While the clash of these baseball rivals will prove one of the main features of the indoor season, there is just as much interest in the meeting between Ernie Schaaf, hard hitting Hub sailor, and Al Friedman, Roslindale Hebrew, who also are expected to provide more thrills than Sam Langford has been given by a heavyweight boig for the past few months.

SHIRES O. K.

But the granting of Shires' license comes as glad news to Hub fans. It was granted at a meeting of the boxing commission, at which Eddie Mack of the Garden was present. Mack presented the credentials of the ball players and after a resume of Shires' record in the ring the boxing body granted the license.

All three commissioners, Messrs Foote, Buckley and Noland attend at the important conference, and the entire trio is planning to be at the ringside when these bitter rivals clash

According to an announcement made at the Garden, the bout between Shires and Spohrer is due to go into the ring about 9.30 p. m. This will give all the fans an opportunity to get to the Garden, and it is planned to have this contest precede the battle between Schaaf and Friedman

Five more preliminary events were clinched at the Garden by round out one of the finest shows presented in the Hub this season. Tommy Rawson, Jr., of East Boston, former amateur champion, clashes with Johnny Gonzales of Los Angeles and Noddie Island fans will time Rawson's boxing prowess.

Tom McNeeley, Cambridge bricklayer, gets his big chance when he faces Jimmy Kennedy of Providence, ex-rounder. Herman knocked out Johnny Urban in three rounds in his last start.

Michigan Board Postpones Its Decision on Art Shires

Lansing, Mich., Jan 9 (AP)—Disposition of the case of Arthur ("The Great") Shires was deferred by the Michigan Boxing Commission when the taking of testimony was completed today. A decision was expected before night

A motion that Shires be exonerated of all implication in the alleged attempt to "fix" a fight in Detroit, with Battling Cross was offered by Commissioner Henry Kennebaugh, Detroit. In compliance with a request by Commissioner David Gudelsky of Bay City, the vote to strike the testimony a vote on the motion was postponed

Shires Has Earned $8000 in the Ring

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP)—Since he began boxing as professional fist fighter just a month ago, Arthur ("The Great") Shires has earned exactly $8000 in four engagements $300 more than he got for playing first base for the Chicago White Sox all last season.

The "Great One" got the $8000 in the short period of 30 days, compared in five months of baseball play for $4000. Shires' contract with the White Sox called for $8500, but fines plastered on him, ate up more than $7000.

Dempsey Hints Return to Ring

New Orleans, La., Jan. 9 (INS)—Jack Dempsey, a assertion that he will be not ready for fistic duties now, he is not "through yet," was presented to the sports world today.

The former heavyweight champion received $2500 for a one and a half of work last night when he refereed the bout between Johnny Cook and Milton Mangunn, which ended when Cook knocked out his opponent in the fifth round.

Dempsey made a speech from the ring in which he said he was not "through yet as you will see."

Dr. Block's Daily Health Hint

GREASE can be removed from hair by using diluted medicated alcohol and then allowing the hair to dry quickly. Such a procedure should not be repeated too often. Its too frequent use may cause the hair to become dry and possibly to fall out at a future time.

GIRL WITHOUT 'DATES' FEELS LONESOME

Don't Lower Standards, Warns Love Expert

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage

HERE is a letter so typical of many I receive from lonesome girls that it seems to me it deserves a place in this column and a very loving, careful reply:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I have read your column in the paper very often, and as you have helped so many others, perhaps you will help me.

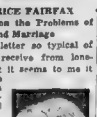
"I am twenty-three years old, a brunette and rather small for my age. I don't smoke, drink or pet and I am not flapperish. But here is what worries me: Men never ask if they can call on me. In other words I have never had a date and I am twenty-three years old!

What do you think is the matter with me? My clothes look well on me and I am neat about my person. I act as well as I know how, but something is wrong somewhere. I am so lonesome, I don't know what to do. Please advise me. I thank you.

"C. A."

There are many girls like you in this world, C. A., and among them are numbered some of the sweetest and most lovable. Everyone has experienced lonesomeness at one time or another. But it is hardest of all to be lonely in the days of youth, when a girl with all the impulsiveness and ardor of her young heart longs for attentions, fun and good times!

The one thing I do not advise you to do is to sacrifice your principles, lower your standards, cheapen yourself in any way for the sake of easy, quick popularity. Be true to yourself. You are the kind of girl many men are looking for as sweetheart and wife, never doubt that for a moment. When it comes to marriage, men wish a helpmate who is kindly, home-loving, dependable and above the shadow of suspicion.



Beatrice Fairfax

I cannot tell, without knowing you personally, whether there are small defects of disposition and personality that stand in the way of your making friends. I can only counsel you, be yourself—your natural, unassuming self, but try to improve that self through the cultivation of personal fastidiousness and charm. That quiet of charm and daintiness and building of character will help fill in lonesome evenings. Study yourself and mend any mannerisms that might make you unpleasant to others.

Are you making an effort, C. A., to get out and meet young people? That much you should do, for you need social contacts. Church activities, club work, community service and devotion to some worthy charity should enable you to take an active part in what is going on in your community and meet congenial friends, both young men and women.

Why do you not join a dancing class that meets in the evening and includes girls and young men among its members? Learning to dance well should be good fun, and also help you acquire social poise and grace.

Join a girls' club if you can. You will naturally be invited to the homes of different club members and meet their brothers and friends. Wherever you go, look as pretty and be as dainty as you can, forget yourself and try to make others feel at ease and happy.

You have not happened to meet the right young man as yet—circumstances have been unfavorable. A good vacation trip next summer may help. I have known other girls, who, like yourself, felt themselves completely out of it, then suddenly along came Mr. Right.

A Love-Song

DRAWN BY
Nell Brinkley

TO the crowd fancy free, no strings on their hearts, foot-loose, still on the range untamed, these two and their like are behind the bars. Corraled, done for, in jail, captive. But, to the two in that blissful, "lively shadow world of song," where they sing because they must from a couple of hearts crowing with ecstasy the bars are the singing strings of Love's lute. The world behind, instead of the narrow house of a monotonous cage, is the whole wide world of Heaven. To them the world on this side is the prison treadmill; on their side only is freedom and wonder, and rainbow heights, where the heart grows wings like a swallow and flies away.

We are the dull ones, caught by life and tamed. THEY are the free, the rovers in the fields of poesy. They only touch toes to the earth now and then; all other times they float gently along while Love tunes and plucks the strings. The rest of us plod along heavily in the sod of our everyday affairs.

Lovers have no earthly affairs. If they have they do not know it, much to the despair of their relatives who do not happen to be in that bewitched world behind the singing strings.

"Behind the bars," say you.

"Living in a love-song," say they. "In the world of singing, swinging melody, where even the name of 'Lizzie' and 'Mike' can be seraphsweet."

NELL BRINKLEY.

Listen, World!

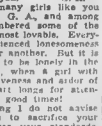
By ELSIE ROBINSON

WELL, what if you DID lose in the stock market?

And suppose you ARE going to have a lean year?

If you've got an ounce of sporting blood left in you, it was worth it!

Yes I know the stock went flooey. But the money itself wasn't the important thing. Even if it had won for you 10 times as much as it lost, it wouldn't have been the Big Asset in your life.



Elsie Robinson

Your Biggest Asset is the thing inside you that made you take that chance.

And if you've got that thing in you still, all the market slumps on earth can't wipe you out!

Laughing at you? Sure they're laughing.

Let 'em!

Maybe they ARE richer than you are loony—richer in money. But they aren't richer in the smug red hot stuff of living . . . and that's what counts!

No, I am not advocating gambling in shares. And maybe stock markets are, in some respects, as pernicious as old Wiseacres say they are. But there's something behind stock markets. There was something behind YOU when you went into the stock market . . . that isn't pernicious . . .

And that is the urge to take a chance.

That urge is the biggest, bravest thing in human life . . . and is the thing that has made human life possible. We'd still be wearing tails if some guy hadn't taken a chance. We'd still be living in caves and eating roots and bugs. But, thank heaven, there was always some restless, reckless creature in every group who wasn't content with the status quo and who insisted on risking life and property in some daring speculation. Did he get a lot of applause and encouragement for doing it? Don't make me laugh! What that bow-legged Columbus probably got was a good hard sock in the neck! But he took his chance. Just the same. And all our progress has been based on that chance.

All that we have we owe to some gambler! Fire and light and electricity. Homes and schools and governments. Love and freedom and decency and our hope of God. . . . all we owe to some gambler.

But sometimes the gambler lost . . . as you've lost. And the tribe gave him the ha-ha . . . as they're giving it to you. But the tribe was wrong. For even if the gambler lost, he won. Even if everything he had . . . even his life itself . . . was wiped out, he was still richer than the ones who played safe. For he had the pride and thrill of adventure. He'd dared to laugh at safety and defy Fate. He'd asked for a little while with the gods . . . even if it did cost him a flop. And life for him would never again be the same for he had tasted freedom . . . FREEDOM FROM HIS OWN FEAR.

Now would life ever again be the same for the tribe. For every man who dares, even though he dares foolishly, adds something to the sum total of human courage and initiative.

So buck up, stranger, and don't hang out the crepe because you've lost in the stock market. The guy that hasn't taken plenty this time will win you plenty next time, if you've the sense and spunk to hang on to it.

They can wipe out your balance in the bank—

BUT AS LONG AS YOUR NERVE IS INTACT YOU'VE STILL GOT THE GOODS!

Miss Pat -:- Thrilling Romance of Airways

out of it" on won't ran back with me, Pat!"

"She'll never do that again, Bull!" Guy laughed and settled the little boy in Pat's lap. He went down to the ravine, gathered drift and made a great, blazing fire. Then he took out the sandwiches and coffee.

Billy clapped his hands. "Can I have some? Pat, will he give me some?"

She could cry now. She didn't care that Guy would see her tears. She said choking: "Oh, he's an angel, Guy — dear, brave little boy—"

"But can I have the sandwich, Pat? All of it." It's an order!"

Guy mixed water with the canned milk. He added a few drops of the brandy and coaxed Billy to drink. They wrapped him in Guy's sweater.

"Now you sle p, Bill. Tomorrow we'll climb a mountain then we'll duck as her wind. Then we see your mother. But first you've got to sleep—"

"Yes, I will. You're not fooling me, I'll see her." His r- ling, small form nestled against Pat's arm. For a long while a smile loitered on his lips. Pat smoothed the soft, gold hair. She stooped down and kissed his forehead. She felt her heart almost breaking in its happiness.

The fire threw a tall, eerie glow against the darkness. There was no moon—but from the deep abyss they looked up to a million stars.

They sat here in the encompassing shadows holding to each other's hand and whispering. So much they had to tell; so much that was too stabbing sweet to tell. Deep, trembling silences drew them in strong communion.

The feeling that a miracle was wrought, the sense of guidance and of strength far greater than Pat's own was now so strongly upon her that she spoke of it to Guy.

The towering canyon walls that had seemed so awful in their dark colossal remoteness; so terrifying in their vast, unechoing silence, were now all grimly with grandeur, with mighty awe and majesty. She whispered: "One feels God here. One knows that only infinite imagination could have wrought this sublime, titanic sculpture! I know —Oh, Guy, I know that I was helped!"

She slept with her face resting on his knee. He looked often at the sweet, almost child-like profile. There was a smudge of black on her cheek—her long lashes were wet and her hair was all uncombed.

Yet he thought that nowhere in picture or statue had he seen such loveliness, such sweet, brave beauty as dwelt in Pat's half-opened lips and on her smooth young forehead. He parted the hair with his hand. He leaned over her and kissed the part.

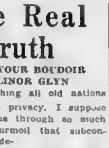
The Real Truth

ABOUT YOUR BOUDOIR
By ELINOR GLYN

THE one thing all old nations crave is privacy. I suppose we have some through so much noise and turmoil that subconsciously we desire repose and peace.



Elinor Glyn

In France and England that old quotation is true, "Every man's house is his castle."

Gardens are all fenced in and all intrusion of neighbors is thoroughly discouraged. The higher the social grade the more pronounced this desire for privacy becomes.

All rooms have doors which shut them up separately. There is never a "living room" in the sense that term is used in America.

There is a drawing room, and a sitting room, or several, according to the size of the house, and a dining room.

One never sees those archaic between dining room and living room and hall and staircase all open together which are such a feature in the pretty Californian homes.

This, of course, makes for individuality but discourages the communal spirit.

But for you, Gracie and Maud, who need not worry about national trends, it is certainly agreeable to possess a delicious boudoir of your own where you can express your own taste.

If Gracie is a very fair girl I would like her to have a sea green room, walls, ceiling, carpets and curtains all in different depths of sea green never deep at any point.

Then she can choose the actual furniture of the style she prefers, only I would advise her to have its covering of sea green too, and only have other colors in the cushions and china or glass and flowers.

She will look her ethereal dainty best in this, especially if the other tints are soft, and run to lilac or apricot.

Abnormal Heads in Children

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

WHEN a child suffers from hydrocephalus the skull is markedly enlarged, while in microcephalus it is much diminished in size. While, however the two conditions are strikingly opposite in appearance, their respective causes can not in any way be compared one with the other. It is known that hydrocephalus is due to an increase of the cerebro spinal fluid in the membranes and ventricles of the brain. This may be brought about by a chronic meningitis or inflammation of the coverings of the brain, or by tuberculosis of the brain, by brain tumors, and by other causes.

Dr. L. E. Bisch

The exact causes for microcephalus, however, are not at all clear. The average head circumference of male babies is 13.90 inches, while that of girl babies is 13.82 inches. These measurements are taken around the temple.

In hydrocephalus it is not uncommon, as the child grows, for the head circumference to be as much as 20 to 25 inches. Microcephalic heads are less than normal by several inches.

Normally the growth of the head is rapid during the first year. It increases about 4 inches. During the second year the increase is about 1 inch. From the second year to the fifth the entire increase for three years is only 1½ inches. After the fifth year, also, the circumference increase is very slow.

Curiously enough, it does not follow in the case of hydrocephalus, individuals that the larger the size of the skull — and therefore the greater the pressure on the brain — the lower the general intelligence.

Indeed, although as a rule a condition of "water on the brain" renders an individual defective mentally, there are cases of hydrocephalus where no such mental defects exist.

In cases where the increased pressure causes mental impairment it may be so severe as to amount to imbecility or even idocy.

The eyesight and hearing may also be affected. Convulsions are not uncommon. Occasionally, in some cases, partial or complete paralysis of the legs is to be found.

In disposition the hydrocephalic is obedient, quiet, docile and affectionate.

Microcephalics not only have an unusually small skull but the scalp is thick and in folds, the hair is coarse, and the chin is receding.

They are given to mimicry great deal and are very affectionate and obedient. They are alert and rather vivacious.

Mothers should watch the so-called "holes in the head" of the baby. These are the fontanels which specialists inquire about when the mentality of a child is in question.

The fontanel in the back of the head is usually closed by the end of the second month. The one in the front of the head closes about the eighteenth month.

If a fontanel remains open at the end of the second year an abnormality must be considered and it may be hydrocephalus. If the fontanel closes prematurely microcephalus is a possibility.

Mothers are usually fearful of touching the head where the fontanels are situated, but there is no danger of injuring the child in this way.

Fads and Fashions

A Cross Fox should be glad of the chance to trim a lovely suit of black broadtail cloth. With it is worn a pale beige satin blouse with a high neck and a small red bow accented by two rows of small brilliant buttons, also placed at the cuff.

A Bagful of Charms will be discovered in the charming and original evening bags that have just been shown. A finely wrought seed pearl evening bag adds to its interest by a crystal frame and a life look of marcasite and onyx through which a crystal ring is placed to form a handle.

The Gold Mark is to be seen on many sumptuous evening frocks for gold embroideries and gold threads are an important feature of the season's mode. Magnificent indeed, is a taffeta frock, its surface glittering with gold beads, the skirt which dips in four points is lined with cloth of gold.

All is not gold that glitters on some of the new frocks, but an evening frock of bright gold lace is certainly a shining example of the new mode. Its deep decolletage is outlined by a bertha of gold lace, which is edged by matching tulle, and the tulle is used for a deep transparent hem.

Winter Leaves Are to be Found in a smart little hat from Reboux. It is of dark green felt pressed into leaf shapes. It is silk here and there to show emerald satin, is cut in leaf formation along the edges, and is worn with a pin of carved jade.

Bridal Attendants

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have recently attended two weddings of very fashionable and wealthy young ladies, and noted at both marriages that the bride had but one attendant and the groom had seven attendants (best man—ushers).

Will you be good enough to kindly tell me whether this was correct (or something new) as I was under the impression that the groom had as many ushers as the bride had bridesmaids?

MISS E. L.

THIS is in perfectly good form and taste, and is often done. The bride has as many, or as few, attendants as she wishes. Often she has none, very often now. And the number that she chooses to have has nothing to do with the number that the groom chooses to have.

You see, since it is not the custom in the well-planned cosmopolitan wedding for the bridal attendants to be "paired off" with the groom's attendants, it is not necessary for the bride to have the same number of attendants as the groom has. Nowadays it is not good form for the maid of honor or the matron of honor to walk with the best man, or course, in the processional, and not in the recessional, either. And it is considered pass for the bridesmaids to walk with the ushers in the recessional. Therefore, you see, there is no reason for having the same number of bridal and groom attendants.

Little Albert came home one evening with his clothes full of holes. When his mother asked him for an explanation he said: "Oh, we were just playing grocery store and everybody had to be something, so I was the cheese."

OPINION SPLIT ON REVIVAL OF MARKET

By FRANK R. MELDON,
Financial Editor

In State Street brokerage circles opinion is very much split on the probable time when there will be a revival of stock market activity to what might be called normal. About half the brokers think it will come around April 1 and the other half say around July. There is a remarkable unanimity of opinion that, when activity is revived on a prolonged scale, higher prices will prevail for all sound issues.

We find State Street opinion unanimous to the effect that the person appointed to supervise Massachusetts blue sky work ought to be a man who has experience in that line. A lot of the troubles with State supervising over securities in the past has been the appointment of men who knew nothing about their work and who had to learn it as they went along. This was a painful process for all concerned. Business and financial corporations require experience for important jobs; why should not the states?

The year 1930 marks the Golden Jubilee of liability insurance. Just fifty years ago in London this form of insurance came into being with the establishment of The Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Limited, and just forty-four years ago a branch of that company was established in Boston, the first company in the United States to write employers' liability insurance. Thus The Employers' Liability Assurance Corp. Limited, in celebrating this year the golden jubilee of liability insurance also celebrates its own golden jubilee, a period during which millions of dollars have been paid to satisfy claims of or against its assured.

New England boasts of Hartford as the center of insurance activity. In Boston you can find a way to insure yourself against almost anything. One company will meet anything. One company has a policy which insures you against losses in your home, garage or while traveling, exceptions being made on only a few articles.

Department of Agriculture figures indicate the 1929 corn crop for the nation was the largest since 1912. Many surmises concerning the reasons are possible. It is certainly surprising that such a drop in the harvest inaugurated by the Pilgrim Fathers should be recorded, especially with the silo requirements vastly increased in the past 20 years. To fill a silo 20 by 20 by 32 feet requires at least 20 acres of corn, so you can get from this a fair idea of the increased acreage that might be expected from the erection of new silos.

Most of our so-called leading economists have shown themselves to be poor prophets with short-range forecasts. The trend in prediction has taken a sudden change. All the 1930 statements by economists have since stretched our attention deal with long-range prophecy. In plainest English this means we will be a long time before anyone can demonstrate that the forecasters are wrong.

Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell of Columbia University says "There is preponderance of opinion among economists that there will be a general decline in prices during the next two or three years." That opinion is predicated on the rapid disappearance of the gold reserve of the country. One thing that will offset a decline in prices to a point as low as or lower than 1926, were many years ago, is a pronounced development in gold mining or extremely radical changes in banking methods.

Billion-Dollar Sales Manager Gives Pointers

Dick Grant Fills Biggest Sales Job in World; His Methods By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Wouldn't you like to learn how to sell a billion dollars' worth in one year? For having achieved that record, one American has been chosen for the biggest sales job in the world. That has been the direction of all the General Motors Corporation sales activities.

B. C. Forbes

This is the most responsible, the most gigantic selling job the world has ever known. Chevrolet sales alone last year approximated a retail value of a billion dollars. General Motors has, in addition to Chevrolet, a long line of other motors as well as domestic refrigeration, electric lighting and other products. Taken too, Dick Grant will have as part of his job the creation of a nation-wide network of outlets for Frigidaire, the latest field to be invaded by General Motors.

* * *

Dick Grant, a little fellow, was born in Massachusetts 51 years ago with English blood in his veins, graduated from Harvard, tried several jobs before he developed aptitude for selling. He first made his mark with the late Edward A. Patterson of National Cash Register, and became general sales manager. Next he raised Deico Light from a one-town concern to a national organization. Frigidaire followed—and blossomed equally. Chevrolet needed attention, so Grant was called in.

"It would be interesting to have you tell how to sell a billion dollars worth of one product in a year," I prodded Mr. Grant. Under further prodding, here are some of his observations:

"To sell a lot of anything, the product must be right, must be meritorious in quality and attractive in appearance, and must be priced right to the buyer's pocket. But that is only part of the problem.

"You must have an adequate number of the right kind of outlets.

"I believe that when any factory decides to adopt a program of expansion, the sales department must heat the factory to it. Usually the panics have lost out because they expanded their factories without correspondingly expanding their outlet facilities.

"Then, there must be a leadership and supervision that can develop throughout all the retail outlets not only keen selling enthusiasm, but the most effective business-getting methods. This service is self-created, never runs itself up. It has to be done through leadership, through example, through education, through training, through persistent effort.

"There must be such sympathy and confidence and loyalty between the manufacturer and the seller of the goods that the keenest desire to sell more is constantly borne throughout the whole selling field. Such a relationship inspires and impels men to do things beyond the ordinary.

"Furthermore, in addition to being, through a constant study of facts, very sensitive to what is happening on the firing line, fast communication must be established between headquarters and selling outlets and communication back from outlets to headquarters must be just as rapid. Such lines of communication must be an integral part of your organization plan. A sales manager may conceive wonderfully fine ideas, but unless he can put the ideas to work, they will remain only ideas, unfruitful, unproductive. Although the sales manager of a large organization must spend much time out in the field, he must have developed machinery which will start functioning immediately he gets a worthwhile idea."

Asked what was the first thing he did when he took hold of Chevrolet, Grant explained:

"As all successful business is based on understanding, on mutual confidence, I first got acquainted with my own organization, with the key men at headquarters, with the regional managers, the zone managers and others. I outlined my plans in a way that got them sympathetic and enthusiastic about carrying them out. Next I toured the country, visiting dealers, addressing gatherings of dealers, explained the proposed program and succeeded in selling it to them also. Thus we had the entire organization united in a co-operative movement.

"Instead of multiplying our total number of dealers many times over, we have painstakingly followed a system of co-operating very closely with our dealers to enable them to make more sales and more money.

"One of the first things we did was to set up a sales promotion department. Its fundamental purpose was to create the most effective retailing sales methods and to demonstrate to dealers in the field that it would pay them to adopt these improved, modern ideas."

FRESH BUYING SENDS CURB ISSUES UP

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—Renewed buying trickled into the Curb Market today, and the list generally crept higher. The volume of trading, however, quickened but slightly from yesterday's halting pace.

The disappointing results of bearish operations of recent occasions prompted a moderate covering movement, and operators for the rise started a rather cautious upward movement in the utilities.

United Light & Power A was an active feature, rising nearly 2 points in large scale buying. Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower, Hydro Electric, Brazilian Traction, American and Foreign Power warrants, and Allied Power and Light sold up about a point or two. American Gas and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore sold up about 4 points each in a few sales. Associated Gas & Investment also.

Industrials were mostly neglected, although moderate buying appeared in Crocker Wheeler, General Theatres Equipment and Zonite. Tubize jumped nearly 10 points in a few sales. Franklin Manufacturing dropped a couple of points during the morning, in further selling resolution from the passing of the common dividend. The stock has shown considerable resilience, however, as 1929 was one of the best years in its history.

Oils moved uncertainly. Cities Service was in fair demand, touching 29 for the first time this year, and Indian Territory again pointed upward. Indians was fairly active but moved in a narrow range. In the mines, Noranda was a firm spot.

Troster Again Head of Unlisted Dealers

New York, Jan. 9—Colonel Oliver J. Troster, of Holt, Rose & Troster, was re-elected president of the Unlisted Securities Dealers' Association of New York at the annual meeting of the association. Other officers elected were Frank Y. Cannon, of J. K. Prince, Jr., & Co., first vice president; Charles E. Doyle, second vice president; J. Roy Prosser, secretary, and C. Lester Horn, treasurer.

In addition to these officers the following were elected governors of the association: S. W. Lawson, of Lawson & Co.; Charles M. Kenard, Kenard & Company; Ralph Bristol, Bristol & Willett; Frank Charcol, Charcot & Morgan; H. Prescott Wells, Wells & Wells; Henry Spielman, C. C. Kerr & Co., and H. D. McMillan, L. A. Norton & Co.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—In a final annual report the Pacific Oil Co., affiliate of the Southern Pacific Co. announced today that it was planning in the near future to dissolve the company and distribute the remaining assets in cash to stockholders.

The company was formed in 1929 to take over and operate oil properties belonging to the Southern Pacific Land Co. These properties, however, were eventually disposed of, primarily

BOND MARKET'S PRICE TREND IS UPWARD

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—Steady investment absorption of high-grade bonds kept the price trend upward today. Trading was slightly less active than yesterday and buying inquiry was mostly in rails, which are now virtually at the peak prices reached during 1929.

Easier money conditions after some inactivity, for bond purchasers and large customers of the market are reported to be shifting from the short term obligations, which held their attention through December, to longer maturities. This support was evident in the accumulation of prodigious rails and a few 1929 top prices were attained the past few hours. Lt. Paul General 4s, Missouri, Kansas & Texas prior lien 4s and Pennsylvania gold 5s traded near their highs for the previous year.

Utility bonds kept close to the high-grade rails. American Telephone collateral 5s and Consolidated Gas of New York 5½s, decided gains. Gas and Kansas Gas & Electric 6s claimed more attention, and the last-named issue touched 104¾, half a point above its 1929 top.

American Chan debenture 6s, International Nickel 5s, Standard Dairy 5½s, Walworth first 6s and Goodyear Rubber 8s made progress in the industrial division, which was active only in spots.

The favorite issue of the U. S. government listings was the fourth Liberty 4¼s, but the group was dull and fluctuations were small.

The rise in stock prices during the forenoon had little effect on the volume of business in the convertible issue of which are now less active than the more seasoned type of obligations. American Telephone 4½s, International Telephone 4½s and New Haven 6s rose about a point.

Foreign securities were firm. Austrian 7s advanced a point to 90¾, compared with the 1929 high-price. Bordeaux City 6s and Australian 5s of 1957 showed some activity, but little variation, while French, German and Italian government issues remained almost stationary.

A syndicate offered a $7,500,000 issue of Butler Bros. 5 per cent serial debentures, due Feb. 1, 1932, to 1945, priced at 99.41.

VICK PLANS TO RETIRE STOCK

The Vick Financial Corporation, which was organized late in the spring of 1929 by the Vick Chemical Company, shows in its annual report as of December 21 a shrinkage in its common stock of only 50 cents a share from the par value of $10, despite the fact that it did not commence business until June 10 and was operating less than five months before the stock market collapsed.

Total assets of $13,276,352 include investments of $12,069,809 valued at cost. These investments at the December 31 closing prices had a market value of $11,539,845. With investments valued at cost the book value of the stock at the end of the year was $10.08 per share and with the year's closing prices as the basis of computation the book value was $9.65 per share. This figure was arrived at after all expenses incidental to organization had been charged off. The balance sheet shows no deferred charges or liabilities.

Authority to purchase and retire 100,000 shares of the corporation's stock at a price not exceeding $12 a share will be asked of the stockholders at their annual meeting on January 28.

Arizona Commercial

Arizona Commercial Mining Co. declared a dividend of 25 cents a share, same as six months ago, payable Jan. 31.

SPECIAL CARS FOR WOMEN TO BE SHOWN

Snooty cars, the exteriors of which right down to the upholstery of the interior are especially designed for women, will feature the 28th annual Boston Auto Show to be staged under the personal direction of Chester I. Campbell in Mechanics Building from January 18 to 25 inclusive.

In fact, Director Campbell said today this year's show is to be bigger and better than ever. One of the reasons, he said, is because the Boston exposition is being held early in the new year instead of in March as in past years, directly follows the New Year show, and has resulted in the Hub securing a special car showing, something which he has been seeking for several years. Another asset is the relegation of Chicago to third place, Chicago formerly followed New York.

More passenger and commercial cars will be displayed here than at any other show in the country. The Boston Show also has the distinction of being the only one in the United States where the Ford Motor Company itself shows.

About those "special for women" automobiles. The Rembrandts of the industry have spent a year turning out bodies for these collectors of the beautiful, and the results are truly amazing. Low-slung bodies, beautifully decorated, and blonde or brunette with eyes to match may waltz into Mechanics building, take one peek and say: "I'll take this."

The cars will be actually there to harmonize with one's complexion or clothes ensemble. That's how much snootier the manufacturers have become this year. The accessories of the car have received the same treatment, from highly polished handles to scroll-worked doors and beautiful flower vases.

The lower-priced machines are also a thing of beauty. Cars ranging from one cylinder to the luxurious 16-cylinder will all be on exhibit, and featured in this display will be the new four and eight-cylinder motors, with the usual large showing of the popular sixes.

Automobile Show Gives Promise of Prosperity

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—What was luxury in automobile equipment a few years ago would appear from a survey of models at the National Automobile Show to be merely part of the standard equipment today. Wire wheels, metal covers for spare tires, tandem windshield wipers, non-shatterable glass in windshields, windows and doors, and radiator shutters are displayed in cars of many manufacturers. Better visibility is provided for the majority of cars by the use of narrower front pillars, some makers employing a hairpin arch to obtain minimum thickness.

Reports of sales orders received by exhibitors at the show and presented at a meeting of the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the show, were declared encouraging. While definite figures were not given out, Alvan Macauley, president of the chamber, said:

"These orders show that the public is buying. Business has started. As in the past, the automobile show has proved that it is a stimulating force, starting the business year off in the right direction. The technical committee, at a meeting of the contest board of the American Automobile Association it was announced the Automobile Club of America had decided to offer again the Grand Prix gold prize at the annual race on the Indianapolis speedway.

In an effort to encourage stock car racing the contest board decided that rules governing this department of the sport should be formulated by the association's technical committee.

Letters From Readers

Let Youth Revolt, They'll Come Back, He Says

Editor Boston American:

So much is said against the Revolt of Youth that I am moved to say something in its defense.

I am very glad that young people of today have taken the bit between their teeth and are off on a stampede of gaiety and noise. They cannot think or act with older people. They decline to take life seriously. They dance with vanity and apparent immodesty.

Some old fogeys rip out their moral censure and join the hue and cry after these runaways. They do not affect the pace, however. When youth gets good and ready, it will come back.

Youth will be always in revolt. That makes youth. If it kicks over the traces of conventionalism, there would be no change in tomorrow without this kick. Youth would be untrue to itself, if it did not sooner or later cut the maternal apron strings.

Youth will recover from its antics. Some of its elders does have forgotten what darn fools we made of ourselves in our youth.

Place of Common in Tercentenary

Editor Boston American:

Boston Common and its past history ought to be the center of attention during this tercentenary time. That place was the very foundation of the Government of this country. From it came the proverbial town meeting, which is unique in this part of the country. When Rev. William Blackstone took up his abode on this 800-acre farm he built a small hut, where he lived and liked to ride his bull as he preached and advised his listeners.

Boston Common was the regular place for executions. The first hanging took place there in 1637, when William E. Shouter was sworn to his death for murder, then followed hanging for witchcraft, Quakerism, theft, etc.

The Common could not be used on Sundays for a walk. Skating, smoking and many other diversions were placed under the ban upon that day. There was no bathing on Sunday just beyond what is now Charles st. The pond there was very popular.

Urges Reduction of Costs of Child Birth

Editor Boston American:

The price of the birth of babies is going up. When I was born, my parents who lived in the country in a small town, paid $8 to the doctor, gave him three meals, fed his horse with two meals and kept him over night, if necessary.

But the cost of a birth of a child is high in modern life. I asked my doctor, who is interested in this subject, for some statements about this. He gave me the information that in a certain large city 540 babies cost on an average of $110 each.

Charges vary for births. Parents earning $3000 or more, $270; those earning $1200 to $3000, $129; those earning $1200 or less, $64; those depending upon charitable agencies, $27. Of course in Boston prices are higher and are higher. My only object in writing this is to urge more hospitals for people of moderate means.

We should encourage motherhood instead of retarding it by high prices. The Massachusetts General Hospital is just completing a hospital for people of moderate means. Let us build maternity hospitals charging reasonable prices.

Criminal Tendencies Nurtured by Education

Editor Boston American:

Why is it there are more educated men in prison than ever before? I have just returned from California, where I learned that in San Quentin prison, outside of San Francisco, more graduates of colleges, are confined than ever before.

Education has made some persons more cunning and more capable and willing to take a chance. They think that they can get away with violating most of them do.

There is a man in one of our penal institutions, highly educated, but his education has twisted his mind to the degree that he uses it in scheming and planning to get the best of someone, either lawfully or unlawfully.

This is the way that education affected him.

This is a type of the educated burglar. You will find him in every prison in the country. Now this is no argument against education, but rather in favor of a better application of education.

Aims of Watch and Ward Society Defended

Editor Boston American:

The Watch and Ward Society, according to newspaper reports seems to be gasping for life. I think that it should be given a tonic. It is worth preserving. Its life must be changed. Just have patience with its ailing organization. All that it really needs is a change of perspective.

We want such a society to get rid of the mental dyspepsia that oppresses so many readers, seekers after unwholesomeness in books.

Cure this abnormal taste. The society can do it with different methods. There are many things that the society can do reasonably and earn for itself an enviable reputation.

I will not join the group of growlers against it. It must live and I believe it will live notwithstanding the episode of that Cambridge book store.

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

A Greater Boston Issue

The 50 Per Cent Jump in Narrow Gauge Fares

THE NEW owners of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad probably wonder why their predecessors did not jump the fare back in the time of the World War, when everybody was doing it.

They suggest an increase of 5 cents, making the flat fare 15 cents but offering tickets, in lots of a dozen, at 12½.

Objection, principally by residents of Winthrop, Revere and Lynn, is merely what must have been reckoned upon. No family with four of its wage-earners paying $4.80 a week for transportation can be expected to look with equanimity upon an increase of $2.40 a week—$124.80 a year—or half of that amount.

To the "old" owners of the 12-mile Narrow Gauge, the Adamses and their associates, the little railroad was the "old family horse," nothing fancy but absolutely dependable.

Change of ownership has meant a shift from steam to electricity and a program calling for improvement in boats, buildings and equipment. The railway is "smarter," more modern. SOME of its patrons, "brought up on" the 10-cent fare, "don't see the need of it."

So far as Revere and Lynn are concerned there are, of course, competing lines. But the competition is nominal. The Boston & Maine Railroad asks 42 cents for the ride from Lynn to Boston, the Massachusetts Street Railway 20 cents. Narrow Gauge trains are frequent, service regular, route "scenic;" railroad trains are few, the trolley ride no round of pleasure.

While they await the public hearings to be appointed by the Department of Public Utilities the people of Revere and Lynn and Winthrop may well give thought to Mayor Curley's suggested City of Greater Boston, its sub-divisions represented in ONE City Council while retaining individuality and home rule.

Because, first and last, this proposal of a 50 per cent increase in Narrow Gauge fares is a LOCAL issue, affecting an important part of Greater Boston.

Most unfortunately, it seems to us, there IS no Greater Boston—except in name—with warrant to attempt its settlement.

How long?

Leader of Men

Robert Winsor

THOUSANDS of New Englanders, scanning with amazement the roll of Robert Winsor's corporate connections and the list of his industrial activities, must have wondered why they had not seen his name in print more frequently during his marvelously busy lifetime.

It was because he wished it so.

Some men HIRE publicity agents; it would not be right to say that Robert Winsor RAN from them—he never ran from anyone—but he avoided them. He believed in doing things; or, better, in having them done.

Since that day fifty years ago when he came from Harvard with Roosevelt little of importance has been done in Boston, nor much more in New England, that Robert Winsor did not have a hand in. Out of a mess of street railways he fashioned the Elevated Railway. He grouped an assortment of local gas companies and from them developed the Boston Consolidated. Railroads, textiles, steel and other varities of big business felt the influence of his strong hand and the mind which directed it.

We have read, somewhere, that it was the theory of one of the dominating figures among the Puritan Founders that the way to govern a community was to gather together that small group which would include its ablest and most learned men and from this circle choose as managers or directors the ABLEST and MOST learned. In any such grouping of the New Englanders of HIS time Robert Winsor would have been found—was to have been found—in the smallest.

It would be idle to say that New England will be hard put to find his successor. The Robert Winsors are not found, but create their own leadership.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

ANOTHER wing of the White House burned up last week. With hot music.

President, Junior, threw a dance for his raccooned pals.

Heretofore, or otherwise, all the White House music has been established by the United States Band, which has a cruising radius of three bugle calls a day.

But when young folks dance they want to hop. So young Hoover imported a jassbo orchestra and invited the neighborn' children to kick the rugs around.

Times have changed since grandma smoked a pipe. Like all other venerable institutions, the marine band has been outdistanced by the younger set. It ain't nervous enough.

The drummer boy of the Civil War may have been K. O., but he wasn't in Tempo.

The spirit of '76 is too slow. Now, the greener generation want the spirit of 100 beats to the minute.

If the music on the night before Waterloo had been broached by a jazz band there would have been no war the next day.

Everybody would have been sleeping.

It's all right to have jazz music in the White House. It's the first time that the night watchman in the Treasury has had company in a long while.

We don't know what the Daughters of the American Revolution will think about it, but it gives them a good chance to start the new year with a loud, wailing squawk, which is their idea of our national anthem.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were there to chaperon things and see that the young folks enjoyed themselves. You can't do both at once. Chaperoning and water don't mix.

There hasn't been so much gayety in the pale bungalow since Alice Roosevelt was a girl about 30 years ago. Maybe we're wrong.

Anyway, Alice was not one of the young folks at the dance. Neither was Mrs. Gann, and the question of chair precedence was demolished by a buffet lunch.

The next time the young folks have a drag at the White House we would like to be there and show 'em real ancestral dignity on a pair of pogo sticks.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

IN some insects, such as the earwig or the dragon-fly, the transition from larva to adult is comparatively gradual. The larva in such forms is often distinguished as a "nymph."

The dragon-fly larva lives at the bottom of a pond, snatching and devouring tadpoles and other creatures by means of the hinged "mask" that projects from its face.

From time to time it moults, and after the third or fourth moult there appears on its back two small backwardly directed lobes, which are the rudiments of the wings.

During the later moults these rudiments increase in size, and at the same time a system of tracheae develops in the body. Finally, often as long as a year after hatching, the fully-grown nymph crawls up a weed or some other object that projects from the surface of the pond into the air and makes its final moult.

It pauses, when it has found a suitable place, for hours, sometimes even for a whole day; then abruptly the nymphskin splits down the back and the tender body of the imago comes out.

H. G. Wells

There is then a period of almost volcanic expansion before the outer skeleton dries and stiffens. The wings, at first small and moist and crumpled, expand and straighten very quickly; the body alters its shape.

In a few hours the body is well-formed and rigid, and after a few tentative movements, the adult dragon-fly sails off to hunt and devour other insects and to breed until the chill of winter puts an end to its life.

In other insects, such as butterflies, beetles, bees and house flies, the metamorphosis from larva to imago is more abrupt.

The butterfly larva, or caterpillar, is a voracious soft-bodied grub with hardly a trace in its body of any structure that it will possess when it is adult.

The fully grown caterpillar, when it is ready to moult for the last time, generally encloses itself in a bed of silk and then undergoes a series of profound changes.

First it moults and assumes a form resembling more nearly that of the adult. In this stage, as a pupa, it remains for weeks or months, and during this time its organs are reconstructed very drastically indeed, undergoing almost complete liquefaction in the process.

Finally, as with the dragon fly, a limp and crumpled butterfly emerges to expand and dry its wings and take to the air.

SECTION 3. CENTIPEDES AND MILLIPEDES.

THE class Myriapoda includes a number of land-living arthopods, breathing by means of tracheae and having long serpentine bodies with from nine to over a hundred and fifty pairs of legs.

In the arrangement of the appendages on the head, in their embryonic development and in other respects they show many resemblances to the insects.

The best-known members of the group are the flat-bodied centipedes and the rounded millipedes; they may be distinguished by the fact that in the latter the body segments are welded together in pairs, so that there appears to be four legs to each segment while in the former there are only two.

The centipedes are fierce, active creatures, stalking small invertebrates and killing them by means of their strong poisonous jaws.

The millipedes are inoffensive plant feeders, with a preference for decaying plants; their bite is not poisonous, but some of them, if seriously disturbed, can exude a foul-smelling fluid in self-defense.

SECTION 3E. PERIPATUS

FINALLY we come to a class, the Onychophora, containing a few species only, all belonging to the single genus Peripatus. The animals are humble creatures, found hiding under stones or damp bark in South America, Africa, Malays, and Australasia. To the layman they are harmless unimportant grubs, but to the zoologist their anatomy is full of interest.

To Be Continued Tomorrow

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

MANY a loving wife spends her whole life trying to understand a man's idiosyncrasies—and ends by being thankful if she can just MEMORIZE them.

She can read all the popular books on "behaviorism," and still be completely at sea about the Human Paradox whose grape fruit she fixes every morning and whose tonic she ladles out twice a day.

For instance, a man will talk for hours about his digestion, draw diagrams of his liver, give you an itemized account of his diet-list, and glowingly describe just how he felt when he had ptomaine poisoning; but he will be embarrassed to blushes when you mention his SOUL.

He will contribute to three orphan asylums, send Christmas gifts to two hundred employes, keep flowers on his mother-in-law's grave the year around—and then go about turning out the lights to save expense, complaining that the laundry bills are ruining him, and wondering why you can't wear lisle-top stockings.

He may vow that he likes his whiskey straight and his women curved, and then spoil his wife's whole evening by going gaga over an animated bone whose earrings play tunes on her collar blades but whose green eyes have the Clara Bow lure.

He may marry a woman who is beautiful and accomplished, a brilliant wit, a skilled bridge player, the president of three clubs, and she most popular woman in town.

Yet, if an old college mate asks him what sort of a woman he married, all he can do in the way of describing the Paragon is to say that the way she cooks a waffle or broils a steak is NOBODY'S business!

He knows, almost without looking, every time his secretary changes the color of her hair-dye. But the wife of his bosom can change the shade of her hair several times a year and, if she's clever about it, he will never wake up to the fact until some sweet neighbor informs him that she's gradually going blonde.

He will let a woman censor his friends, his diet, his pleasures, his haircut, his tailor and his religion—and then suddenly lose his taste for her because she doesn't admire his singing or laugh at his jokes.

In short, a man is the soul of inconsistency and the world's greatest paradox. And no woman who takes up the study of one man in a serious way need ever join a query club for diversion. She can get all her surprises right at home!

The Madagascar Tenrec

Why Is He Famous? Look at His Mouth

(Copyright, 1930)

THIS "GENTLEMAN" OUGHT TO BE IN POLITICS

THERE are ten thousand ways of being famous. How many can you name?

Fame can be acquired for courage, singing, dancing, running, jumping, wealth, acting, discovery, beauty, ugliness and so on indefinitely.

One man is remembered because he jumped into the mouth of a volcano. Another because he set fire to the magnificent temple at Ephesus.

He did it to make his name famous. The lawmakers then issued an order that his name must never be mentioned.

But it IS mentioned in every encyclopaedia, in every history.

This little creature in the picture, living in Madagascar, interests science and has his little place in natural history's hall of fame because in proportion to his size he can open his mouth wider than any other creature, that is, wider than any other QUADRUPED.

Serpents, as you know, open their mouths still wider, so that when fully opened the upper and lower jaws form a straight line, no angle.

If you ask "Why this big mouth?" naturalists give you a surprising answer.

It isn't to fight. It isn't to bite enormous pieces out of some other animal.

This animal lives on earthworms and, nevertheless, he needs this large mouth.

In Madagascar earthworms grow to be three feet long and thick in proportion, and one of them is a mouthful even for such a mouth as this.

It is rather a surprise, something of a "come-down" to learn that such a mouth can eat only worms.

However, don't despise the humble tenrec, but remember that, as Sancho Panza said, "We are all as God made us, and sometimes worse."

We have in our Congress and Legislatures gentlemen with mouths bigger than this, metaphorically and oratorically speaking, but those mouths often do little that is important.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—A photographer in New York and one in Hollywood charge $1000 a sitting. Thus has the roaming and seedy tintyper made way for a highly specialized artist who now stands with the great.

There are any number in New York who ask $100 before proofs are delivered and among topnotchers it is necessary to make appointments many weeks in advance. Often one must pose for Xmas photographs in July. The de luxe members of the guild bear the tag of celebrity.

They are pointed out at first nights and are patrons of expensive cafes, the opera, and otherwise figure in the social doings of the town. Many are taken on world cruises in private yachts. Two have appeared in Europe by royal command. Each occupies a very special field.

One is famed for posing stage beauties. Another has made a specialty of artists and writers, copies of which he displays in his outside cabinet along the avenue. Still another has a gift for stressing the cold eye and steely jaws of masters of big business.

There are baby experts, and Greenwich Village has a lens luminary with a reputation for artistic likenesses of dogs and cats—charging $50 a sitting whether you decide to make selections or not. A Park ave. studio deals only with men and women past middle age.

Quite a number affect a Left Bank manner of dress, with velveteen house coats, purple smocks and jaunty tams. There are others who sprout wisps of waxed impedimials and feature long locks of hair. Their studios are often in the musty skylight attics of outmoded private homes.

The patron must toil up a long flight of stairs where a mere calling card thumb-tacked to a door sill announces the artist. Perhaps tea will be served and a cigarette puffed along with much arty highbrown talk. For the modern photographer is also an actor.

It is a long yelp from the old-time group picture when everybody in the family dressed up and started for town before daylight. In those days the children watched expectantly for "the little bird" while the gurgling voiced photographer pressed the bulb. There was also the head rack, a relic of the inquisition, that kept heads from moving. Yet even in those days the photographer was a romantic figure in little town lives—here today and gone tomorrow. He symbolized worldliness.

In our neighborhood, once a week, usually in the early morning or during the late afternoon lull, there appears out of nowhere a leather lunged seller of fake extra editions. His rousing cry sounds something like this: "X-traw. X-traw! Bong a gong, edeath murder. X-traw! X-traw!" Although we know he is a gypping rascal, most of us, overcome by curiosity, permit him to work his flim-flam.

This afternoon I proceeded to indulge a burst of righteous indignation. After buying a week-old paper, glancing at it, I told him—daredevil that I am—he should be arrested. "Want your money back?" he bellowed. I did, and took it. And somehow I felt pretty cheap.

Broadway hears that Doraldino, the first of the hula dancers—remember Relsenweber's—is making a fortune selling Spanish beauty preparations in Hollywood.

"I have made many mistakes," says a Broadway comedian, "but I never married one."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WE are but lamps, no more, no less,
To let the light shine through,
And in our shining, to express
Things beautiful and true.

We are but harps that every wind
Of life may strike at will;
Though they be cruel blasts or kind,
Some music answers still.

We are all but shells, by tides
Tossed up along Earth's shore,
Yet in our beings there abides
A song for evermore.

Lamp, harp or shell our use is one,
To pass some gleam along,
To give again the sound begun
In immemorial song.
